Promised Candy Proves Lure That Ends In Death For Eight-Year-Old Girl

(International News Service)
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 29.—Kidnaped by a man who offered her candy, the mutilated body of 8-year-old Marberine Appel was found in an alley early today. The girl's neck was tightly bound with strands of piano wire and the head had been deeply gashed by the slayer.

The murder occurred only an hour before the body was found by a motorist putting his car in a garage. Corner C. B. Grumpacker declared.

Apparently the child had been choked to death and her head smashed with a monkey wrench or some other blunt instrument.

The entire police force, consisting of 150 officers, was mobilized in automobiles within an hour and maintained an all night search for the slayer. A volunteer group of citizens helped with the man hunt.

Examination of the body revealed that the child had been assaulted, the coroner stated. Presumably she had been held captive by the killer since the kidnapping, which occurred yesterday afternoon near her home here.

Jack Stamper, 30, was taken in custody on the complaint of the murdered girl's mother, Mrs. Eula Appel, a divorcee. Mrs. Appel told police Stamper called at her home an hour before the body was found and told her not to worry, that the girl would soon be found.

The murdered child's father lives in New York city.

Two men were seen running from the alleyway last night, nearby residents told police. They were not recognized, however.

No apparent motive for the kidnapping and brutal murder could be found by police, except that the crime

PA NEW OBSERVES

Cascade Park is nearing the close of another summer season. Indications are that there will be an immense crowd at the park on Monday, Labor Day. Pa New has a new respect for Cascade Park after summer travels and the inspection of the pleasure parks that citizens in many other cities assemble in for their picnics. If they had a park that would compare with Cascade park, it would be a world wonder in many cities.

Mercer seems to be assuming the lead in the matter of a formal celebration of the opening of the Perry highway from Mercer to Pittsburgh. The tentative plan is for a celebration during the coming month.

The last big week end for the season for auto traffic is approaching. The Labor Day holiday period. Traffic safety should be emphasized in the mind of every driver who plans to be on the road during the three day period.

Tomorrow will mark the end of the observance of daylight savings time in New Castle for this year. The clocks will be changed to Eastern Standard time early Sunday morning.

Young Pa New happened to be passing Highland avenue this morning and noticed a lad flying a kite. This is unusual for this time of the year.

Preparing To Pay Reward To Captors Of Irene And Dague

According to a letter received by The News Company from County Solicitor John P. Lockhart, the County Commissioners are planning to make payment in the near future of the reward offered for the capture of the slayers of Corporal Brady Paul, of the State Highway patrol, on December 29, 1929.

All persons and organizations who offered rewards at the time in addition to $1,000 by the County of Lawrence, are being communicated with, to ascertain if they desire to have payment of their rewards made on the same basis as the county, and through the county commissioners.

It is probable that all rewards offered will be paid into the county commissioners and that the distribution will then be made by the county commissioners of the entire reward, in one settlement.

Drought Relief Appeal Is Likely To Next Congress

Relief To Be Sought For Farmers In Afflicted States For Year

STATES BEGINNING LOCAL PROGRAMS

Plan Is Believed To Be Best That Can Be Done At Present

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—While the nation's sun-baked states mobilized local resources for the relief of drought sufferers, administration leaders today indicated they will appeal to congress in December for aid in tiding drought stricken agriculture through another crop year.

In Alabama, Arkansas, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Louisiana, Mississippi, Ohio, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia authorities were told that state relief organizations have started carrying out the program adopted at the bankers' conference here early this week.

This relief will consist of local loans to solvent farmers, relief for members of cooperative associations through their own organizations and creation of agricultural credit corporations to handle loans on suitable security.

The whole credit relief movement undertaken locally, however, will be conducted on "sound business practices" with indications that many drought stricken farmers will be unable to secure relief. To aid these sufferers, whose crops were entirely destroyed and who are without collateral for additional loans, the government will be forced to ask congress for special relief funds. This was the

(International News Service)
LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 29.—Drama comparable to that which marked his motion picture career accompanied Lon Chaney to the grave he occupies today in Forest Lawn cemetery.

As the famous character actor had requested before he died, a hidden organist yesterday pealed the strains of "Laugh, Clown Laugh," the theme song of one of Chaney's most popular motion pictures.

The dramatic scene, enacted after Lieut. Col. Dyar, Marine chaplain, concluded the funeral services, proved too great an emotional strain on Mrs. Hazel Hastings Chaney, the widow, and she momentarily collapsed.

The music was played by Jack and Sam Feinberg, set musicians for Chaney for several years. It was his last request that the "set music" be played at the conclusion of the funeral services.

Four Petitions Ask City Vote On Voting Machines

PETITIONS ARE FILED WITH COMMISSIONERS

Requires Question To Be Submitted To Voters At General Election

Four petitions asking that electors be permitted to vote on the question of using voting machines for elections in the City of New Castle have been filed at the County Commissioners' office.

Under the law relating to the use of voting machines at least one per cent of the voting population of any one district must sign petitions asking for a vote.

Upon the presentation of this petition it is the duty of the county commissioners to check up the voting list to ascertain if the petitions contain one per cent of the voters.

Settled By Voters

If it is found that they do, then the question of whether or not the district shall purchase voting machines printed on the ballot. If a majority of electors vote for the machines, then the county commissioners have the right to purchase them.

Commissioners have not yet checked up the petitions but according to the affidavits of Thomas Edmunds, attached to three of them and Alderman L. C. Mantz to one, it is set forth that they believe there is the required one per cent necessary to have the matter submitted to voters.

Demonstration of the advantages of a voting machine were made on a machine which was installed at the court house some time ago. It was inspected and tried by many voters who were favorably impressed.

One of the advantages of machines are that they do away with the long and tedious counting of the ballots. As soon as the polls close the number of ballots cast for each candidate is instantly available.

Several surrounding counties have purchased machines recently and they have been in use in large cities for some time.

Truck Catches Fire; Suit For Damages Is Filed As Result

Philip Winick has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against the Pennzoil Company for $730.25 damage to an automobile.

In the statement of claim it is alleged that the plaintiff's truck, driven by Mandus Kraus, drove up to a station of the Pennzoil Company to get gas, preparatory to driving to Pittsburgh. The tank of the truck was located near the engine, and it is claimed that through the carelessness of the gas station operator, gas was permitted to overflow the tank, and that it caught fire from the engine, damaging the truck.

Adjoining his large factory the owner had recently built a large warehouse in which to store the ready merchandise with which to fill rush orders. During this absence from the city one day an acquaintance of his came to ask the plant superintendent if he, the acquaintance, might not store in that warehouse several cases of dry goods that he had ordered and had no room for in his own place. The plant superintendent knew the man as being an old acquaintance of the factory owner and so gave him the permission he sought.

The following day this same acquaintance went to a large wholesale dry goods house and representing himself as being connected with the manufacturer, ordered a shipment of goods, directing that it be delivered to the factory. This was done and the delivery man got the usual receipt for goods received and departed. The manufacturer returned the following day and seeing the cases in the warehouse asked to whom they belonged. On being told that they belonged to his acquaintance, he telephoned him asking him to move the cases out as soon as he could. This the acquaintance did that very afternoon.

At last the first of the month rolled around and the dry goods house sent the manufacturer a bill for the goods. When the manufacturer answered that he did not buy any, the firm asked him to send it back. When the manufacturer replied that the man who had ordered the goods had taken it away, the dry goods company filed suit against him for the value of the goods delivered.

How would you decide this case? Make up your mind before you read the decision.

SECRETARY HURLEY TO START SURVEY OF RIVER VALLEY

a stopover at Chicago Saturday, and will go to Minneapolis on Sunday under present plans.

Planned initially as an inspection of the Mississippi and its tributaries, the survey was narrowed to include only Mississippi projects officially. Side trips may be made enroute, but none have been specially worked out. Officials at the war department pointed out Hurley will be occupied studying the Mississippi improvement plans alone.

Hurley's itinerary, which will be mapped out from day to day will take him over works authorized and underway costing but $5,000,000, less than the Panama Canal, or $325,000,000. It will involve excavation of 455,000,000 cubic yards of earth. The Panama Canal excavation totaled but 233,000,000 cubic yards, according to war department figures.

Up to the present about $90,000,000 has been expended on Mississippi waterway improvement, with total yardage placed in levees about 70,000,000 cubic yards. When present obstructions, or authorized work, has been carried out, this figure will be about 100,000,000 yards with the project about one third completed.

Present authorizations for the Mississippi, it was pointed out, provide merely for basic work in building the stream to capacity navigation and adequate flood control. Actual completion of development must be considered, but will come in the future after present plans have been carried out.

Will Not Stop

Invitations have been received from dozens of cities along the line for the secretary to stop by, but only one has been accepted, that of the Association of Commerce in New Orleans, the southern terminus of the inspection trip. Other stops will depend entirely upon conditions.

Hurley plans a separate inspection tour of the Illinois waterway project authorized by the last congress after the present trip. He deplored the necessity of foregoing this project at present but pointed out that if he diverted from the program of inspecting Mississippi projects he would never complete the work.

STAR LORE ASTRONOMY ANCIENT AND MODERN

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter.

Astronomy is a word that comes from two Greek words meaning (1) constellation or star, and (2) to distribute, to regulate. Astronomy is the science which treats of the heavenly bodies. It is used to mean astrology. During the middle ages astrology exercised a very wide influence in the thinking of men. Astrology was "the art of judging of the influence of the stars, and of foretelling future events by their position and aspects."

A common word of today is "disaster"—formerly meant "a baleful aspect of a star"; now disaster means "a calamity". The science of astronomy is no longer confused with those antiquated, superstitious conceptions.

Notes to public utilities companies telling them to discontinue furnishing gas, electricity, water and telephone service were found near Fish's body.

Pistol Is Found

A 32 caliber automatic pistol was found lying beside Fish's body crumpled up on the floor beside the bed on which lay the other two bodies.

Evidence showing that Fish was in financial straits was found on the body. A six months promissory note for $1,000, due May 1, 1929, already ten months overdue, was found. His savings account showed a balance of but $13 and only $15 was found in the home.

Fish had bought his home, a comfortable residence in the Mt. Lebanon suburban district, just a year ago, neighbors said. Following the loss of his position several weeks ago he had attempted to sell the home. It was mortgaged for $7,000, it was said.

Police today were searching for relatives of the family. Fish is believed to have a brother residing in Washington state. Mrs. Fish has a sister, Mrs. A. M. Thomas, in Ellwood City, Pa., and other relatives in Johnston, Pa.

Fish had been a cripple for several years, following the amputation of his left leg at the knee.

Five thousand western Pennsylvania scouts were there to see Pittsburgh trounce the Reds, 16-12 and 11 to 2.

DROUGHT RELIEF AUUEAL IS LIKELY TO NEXT CONGRESS

Scope of Relief.

Until congress does reconvene, the government's relief measures will be confined to:

1—Rediscounting loans by local organizations through the immediate credit banks.

2—Aiding cooperative associations through the federal farm board.

3—Securing rate reductions in distressed areas, with the cooperation of interstate commerce commission and the railroads.

4—Providing seed, feed and cattle loans from an $800,000 fund but only in Virginia, Oklahoma, Missouri and Alabama.

5—Periodical surveys of crops to indicate sections where surpluses or shortages exist.

6—Prevent undue speculation by frequent use of market news bulletins to indicate sources and prices of farmers' supplies and produce.

Government authorities were content that the relief measures agreed upon by state and federal officials, would meet the drought problem for the present. Real need for emergency relief, it was said, might develop next winter, particularly in areas where all of this year's crops were destroyed. Then, the American Red Cross will look after individual cases and congress will be asked to aid communities, probably through additional feed, seed and cattle loans on small security.

day is replete with numerous ceremonies, including the election of new officers for the Transylvania-Saxon Saengerbund of North America, contest singing by the 17 societies and the general musical program.

Convention Plan

One of the most important events on the first day's program will be the convention of 60 delegates from the singing societies, which will be opened by the grand president of the Saengerbund, Adolf Wiflinger of Cleveland. At this meeting a new president and other high officers will be elected.

The concerts of the mixed choruses will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday and Monday in the cathedral. On the first day Mayor William H. Gillespie will welcome the singers, delegates and visitors, being preceded on the program by John Lienert, who will present the greeting address to the Saengerbund. After Mayor Gillespie's talk had been followed by two sections by the mass chorus and orchestra an address will be delivered by Grand President, Adolf Wiflinger. Contest singing by the societies will follow.

On the second day one of the features of the festival will be the festival address, delivered in English and German, by George Siebal of Pittsburgh, who is now returning from Europe.

Contest singing for the nobel prize (the league flag) by the three leading singing societies, one male chorus, one ladies' chorus and one mixed chorus to whom the first prizes have been awarded by the judges, will be held on the final day.

Through the Saengerfest the singers will be aided by Prof. J. H. Sargent and his 27-piece symphony orchestra. W. A. Nischwitz will direct the choruses. Marion Stavrovsky, soprano, and Estelle Ruth, organist, will have important roles in the Saengerfest.

RUSHING WORK AT NEW BURTON PLANT

by Fred J. Burton, formerly Cleveland district sales manager for the Grasselli Powder company. Charles T. Burton, recently with Du Pont, will be in charge of the Pittsburgh office, a position he formerly held with the Grasselli company.

Tentative plans are made for the opening of offices in St. Louis, Mo., Bluefield, W. Va., Philadelphia, Pa., Atlanta, Ga., and Nashville, Tenn.

As soon as the powder line is well established, the chemical development of the company will necessitate the opening of offices in New York City.

Past sales record of this organization indicates that Mr. Harlan and his aides will be working on a wartime basis to get the plant into production and keep up with the demands of the sales department.

Of course criminals are feeble-minded. Nobody but a fool would risk jail when there are so many legal ways to rob suckers.

GUILD PICNIC GREAT SUCCESS

Between 150 and 200 members of the First Methodist church, with some out of town visitors, motored Thursday evening to the summer cabin of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Pyle on the Slippery Rock creek and enjoyed an evening's outing, under the auspices of the Guild of the church.

A most delicious menu had been planned by Mrs. W. L. Beal, the new president of the Guild, with her efficient aides and the corn was prepared and roasted by a committee from the Men's Bible class and all was finished by most aromatic coffee, prepared and served by W. C. Eckenrood.

The evening hours were brimming full of good times with all sorts of stunts performed by different members and guests; an especially pleasing number was the harmonica program presented by Ralph Johns, a protégé of Miss Christine Butler's from the Neighborhood House. The program was a success, as the fat men in a volleyball game, in which neither side could really claim a victory.

The elephant from the Y. W. C. A. had been brought along and its antics caused peal after peal of laughter when the different members climbed into the skin and performed. Some of the younger folks enjoyed a swim in the creek although the water was a little cold for comfort.

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Pyle proved delightful hosts and the surroundings of their cottage proved an ideal place for such an outing.

The Guild will begin their winter activities with an open luncheon at the church in September.

Among the out of town guests present were Mrs. Hamilton of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Sheehy of Maryland, Mrs. Edna Hildebrand of Olivet, Mich., Mrs. H. Cook of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Lou Badspinner of Jamestown, N. Y.

MR. AND MRS. A. R. KERR HAVE FAMILY PARTY

Beautiful flowers in a profusion of colors made a regular garden of the house of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Kerr, North Beaver street, Thursday when they held a reception in the afternoon in honor of Mrs. Kerr's sister.

Mrs. Anna Waddington of New Brighton, the occasion being her 86th birthday. Throughout the afternoon friends came and went, leaving the best wishes for the aged lady, as well as a number of beautiful gifts in honor of the occasion. She received many beautiful bouquets of the season's best flowers and a shower of post cards was delivered. The Ladies of the G. A. R., of which Mrs. Waddington is a member, remembered her with an avalanche of cards, as did the members of the First Baptist church.

At 6 o'clock a family dinner was served to 16, the table being beautiful with its centerpiece of mixed flowers.

Those from out of town who were present at dinner included Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kerr and daughter "Billy" of Ellwood City, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kerr of Flushing, N. Y., and Mrs. Virginia Kerr MacHayney of Youngstown, Ohio.

Mrs. Waddington, although well along in years, is active in every way and has the best of health. She was formerly a resident of this city but has been living with a son in New Brighton recently, although she visits here a great deal with her sister.

INFORMAL DANCE PROVES ATTRACTIVE

The younger set, the girls in their summery chiffon gowns, the young married set, and the older members of the New Castle Field Club heartily entered into the spirit of the dance Thursday evening when the strains of the splendid orchestra poured forth their tuneful melodies at the informal dancing party held in the club house.

A number of out of town visitors were present and at midnight when the music ceased the members departed for their homes looking forward to another soiree Thursday, September 11.

Birthday Surprise

Thirty nine little friends gathered in surprise fashion Wednesday afternoon to celebrate the seventh birthday of Ruth Nowalk of Beckford St. Games and contests were enjoyed by the little folks and prizes were awarded to Alice Hennon, LeGene McEntire, Lenora Barnes, Clarence Lennig, Thelma Plum and Betty Sanford.

Mrs. Nowalk had as her aides in serving lunch, Mrs. Clarence Lennig, Mrs. W. Lennig and Mrs. Roy Cummings.

Those present were: Marybelle Ulrich, Alice Hennon, Betty Lou and Mary Arlene Hall, Lenora Barnes, Shirley Heinebaugh, Betty, Donna, Belle and Beatrice Saylor, Betty and Jean Wright, Doris Mae Lennig, Grace Irwin, LeGene McEntire, Marian Hughes, Marian Francis, Helen Langlands, Betty and Helen Colbert, Olive and Geraldine McWilliams, Betty and Geraldine Sanford, Doris Stoner, Mary Lou Miller, Jean Bartsch, Bertha Lou Staebler, Shirley Robson, Betty Cummings, Thelma Plum, Frances Brown, Robert Wimer, Esther Nowalk, Clarence Lennig, William and Bertha Close and the honor guest.

Out of town guests were Rev. and Mrs. James Close and children, William and Bertha of Norfolk, Conn. The honor guest received many beautiful and useful gifts.

Swastika Club Meets

The home of Mrs. C. F. Pike, Cleveland avenue, presented a beautiful appearance Thursday evening with garden flowers of many varieties tastefully placed about the rooms.

500 proved the diversion of the evening and concluding play the hostess served a delicious lunch, her appointments being carried out in red and green. Mrs. Carl Mater of Florida was a special guest.

September 11 Mrs. Carl Gilmore of Cleveland avenue will be hostess to the club members.

Amerita Club.

Members of the Amerita club enjoyed an outing Thursday evening at Cascade park, when the members assembled and took in the music, dancing and amusements of that place then proceeded to serve supper at a late hour in the grove.

LABOR DAY PLANS AT FIELD CLUB

A great family day will mark the gathering of members at the New Castle Field Club Labor Day when a full day of golf, bridge and dancing has been planned by the various committees.

In the morning there will be a men's tournament, supplemented by many mixed foursomes; luncheon will be served from 12 to 1:30 and the afternoon will be featured by bridge for both men and women from 2:30 to 4:30, hosts being Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Kirk and Florence Henderson, as well as other golf tournaments and small parties.

Dinner will be served from 7:45, with many private dinner parties and the evening will be taken up with dancing from nine to one. The committee in charge of arrangements for the dance is Mrs. R. G. Low and Mrs. J. R. Frew, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Heck and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Connery.

Roberts Reunion.

Members of the Roberts family met Thursday at the Liberty grange hall on the Harlansburg road for their annual reunion, this outing marking the 51st reunion of one of the oldest families in Lawrence county.

At noon a sumptuous dinner was served, with places arranged for 78 persons at tables gaily decorated with vari-colored flowers. Old acquaintances were renewed and various games and contests were enjoyed.

Mrs. Mary Jane McCommon was the oldest person present.

A rousing business meeting was held during the afternoon and the splendid group of officers already in charge were unanimously re-elected. They are: President, John C. Leonard; vice president, Robert Stoner; recording secretary, Mrs. Angie Atkinson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Jean Roberts; treasurer, Mrs. Charles L. Roberts. The following table committee was also elected at this time: Mrs. Della McClelland, Mrs. Goldie Donaldson, Mrs. Dora Ramsey, Mrs. Jean Forrest, the athletic committee includes Russell McClelland, Dale Brown, Charles Brown and R. S. Carlson.

A special committee was appointed to look after some detailed business of the family and is composed of Cordelia Roberts, Mrs. Angie Atkinson and Clara Roberts.

The reunion in 1931 was voted to be held the fourth Thursday of August at the Liberty grange hall.

Jolly Dinner Club.

The aroma of sizzling bacon and frying ham greeted the nostrils of the late comers Thursday morning when the members of the Jolly Dinner club met at Cascade park for an early morning "ham and eggs" breakfast.

A most appetizing breakfast was served to the 12 members. The table was beautified by the addition of a bouquet of exquisite dahlias in beautiful shades.

After breakfast the women enjoyed the park amusements and planned to meet again September 6 at the home of Mrs. William Langan on the Youngstown road, with the husbands as guests.

Alcanza Club

Members of the Alcanza Club, with their husbands and families as guests had a merry dinner at Cascade Park Thursday evening, the meal being in the nature of a "ham fry".

Following dinner the members enjoyed the various park amusements and left for their homes at a late hour, to meet again September 25 with Mrs. Hattie Castle, Winslow avenue.

Announce Engagement

E. E. Whittaker of 208 Edison avenue announce the engagement of his daughter, Dorothy J. to Richard L. Clark of Rochester, N. Y., son of Rev. and Mrs. L. S. Clark of York, N. Y. The engagement will terminate in a fall wedding.

ALICE WHITE SCORES AS FINE EMOTIONAL ACTRESS IN LATEST THRILLER "SWEET MAMA"

Star Creates New Flapper Type and is Supported by Stellar Cast Including David Manners—Film Thrills and Delights Local Audience at Opening.

Little Alice White romped home with the bacon last night at the Penn Theatre where "Sweet Mama," her latest First National and Vitaphone Picture opened before an enthusiastic audience. This reviewer has seen

Miss White dance and sing in all of her recent pictures, but since her new characterization in "Sweet Mama," it must be stated that Alice can stand with the best of them as a real emotional actress.

"Sweet Mama" is not at all the sort of a picture that the title suggests, but a tense, gripping drama, stark in dramatic realism and carrying punches that hold you on the edge of your seat for all you are worth. Imagine if you can, Alice White in these surroundings, then see the picture and you will agree that she can slum home a dramatic situation so that it stirs you and makes you want to applaud for more.

Here is the story of Goldie, a little show girl—now don't get the idea that this is another of those backstage pictures, because it isn't who is standing with her troupe. She receives a telegram that her boy friend, Jimmy, has been "sprung" by a crook and is reposing in jail. When she returns home, she is happy to find Jimmy is free, but she is unimpressed of the fact that he is working for a crooked cafe owner who "framed" him.

A detective whom Goldie comes in contact with tells her that Jimmy is in danger because of Palmer, the cafe proprietor, and together they formulate plans to make Palmer fall into their trap and at the same time get Jimmy out of his unscrupulous clutches. How this is done is the big dramatic punch of the picture, and far be it from me to tell all and spoil your fun.

Mr. Marousis informs the reviewer he has secured specially for Labor Day, a perfect all color picture, with the golden voiced star, Dennis King, in "The Vagabond King." It is the talk of the universe and is now playing Broadway at $2 per seat. Jeanette McDonald plays the leading female role. It also includes such stars as Warner Oland.

LUNCHEON WILL OPEN WINTER'S ACTIVITIES

At the meeting of the executive board of the Council of Jewish Women, held Wednesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. B. Kline, East Wallace avenue, tentative plans for the winter's activities were discussed with the decision to have the opening meeting of the season in the form of a luncheon at The Castleton Hotel on September 11, with Mrs. Bert Printz of Youngstown as the guest speaker.

Party for Daughter

Twenty-eight little folks in fluffy frocks of many colors formed a pretty sight as they gathered on the lawn of the Gormley home, 415 W. Madison avenue, Thursday afternoon when Mrs. J. P. Gormley entertained for her daughter Margaret, the date being her seventh birthday.

From 4 to 7 the little ones had a most enjoyable time, games of all sorts filling in the hours with Mrs. Frank Wilkinson and Mrs. W. O. Morris directing the activities. Prizes were awarded June Anderson and Dolores Fleeger.

Closing the games the youngsters tumbled into the dining room where a huge birthday cake with seven lighted candles greeted their eyes on the center of a table at which their places were marked by dainty favors.

Mrs. Gormley and her aides served a lunch that delighted the children and Miss Margaret received many lovely gifts with the best wishes of the givers.

Birthday Party

Edith Mae Maybray was the honored guest at a birthday party Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Maybray. Colors of yellow and white were used in the table decorations and a delicious luncheon was served.

Guests were Dolis Cochran, Dorothy Jackson, Emma Jane White, Ruth Eleanor Reynolds, Charlotte and Thelma Whitling, Evelyn Fulkerson. Prizes were awarded Ruth and Marion Reynolds and Evelyn Fulkerson. Mrs. Goldie Maybray assisted in serving the luncheon. The honor guest received a number of pretty gifts.

Stage Corn Roast.

Thirty-five members and special guests of the East Side Social club enjoyed the evening last night at Lakewood beach, where a corn roast and general good time was held. Ladies of the club, their husbands and families attended.

In charge of the affair was the committee chairmaned by Mrs. L. A. Nicholson and assisted by Mrs. Henry McEwen and Mrs. Earl White.

Special guests during the evening included Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Pink and children and Mrs. F. A. Pink of Indianapolis and Mrs. Orr of New Castle.

Announcement of the date of the next meeting will be made later.

Honor Visitor

In honor of Mrs. Cecil Lowry of Philadelphia, who has been the guest of friends and relatives in Ellwood City and New Castle for the past two months, a number of friends and relatives gathered in the home of Mrs. F. V. Lowry of Shenango Stop, Wednesday evening at a surprise handkerchief shower.

The hours were spent in cards, three tables being in play. At a seasonable hour, delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Lowry.

Attend Reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. David Badger of Worthington avenue, Mrs. Roy Dickey and daughters Laura and Mary Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Yoho and Mrs. Lottie Maitland, Katherine street have returned from Brady's Mills near Clintonville, where they attended the reunion of the Williams family. This family first settled in 1803 near Elizabeth.

SHENANGO CHAPTER CHOIRS ENTERTAINED

Mrs. May B. Young and Miss Marjorie Rhodes were delightful hostesses to the members of the choir of Shenango chapter No. 333, O. E. S., during the years of their administration as worthy matrons, at a lawn party at the home of the former on Wallace avenue last evening.

The evening hours were spent in playing miniature golf on an improvised course and various other games, seven tables for cards being in play. The honors went to Mrs. Anna Rowland, Mrs. Ethelyn Metzler and Mrs. Blanche Whitaker.

A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the decorations in a novel and attractive manner. Mrs. Young and Miss Rhodes had as their aides the Misses Dorothy, Margaret and Jean Young.

Mrs. Anna Rowland, present worthy matron of the chapter, was a special guest.

Willing Workers Class Party

Members of the Willing Workers class of the First Congregational church had a seven o'clock dinner at Cascade Park Thursday evening and places were arranged for twenty members, the table was centered with garden flowers and appointments were carried out in pink and white.

Following dinner a number of contests were held with prizes going to Mrs. Charles Henry and Mrs. Ermy's Davies.

The committee making arrangements included Mrs. Ermy's Davies, Mrs. Annie Williams, Mrs. Harry Price, Mrs. Horace Evans, Mrs. William Johns and Mrs. Griff Thomas. The class will have a regular meeting September 25 with Mrs. William Johns, Park avenue.

T. Y. C. Club

Mrs. Rose Alexander was a charming hostess to the members of the T. Y. C. club at her home on Lutton street, Thursday evening. Mrs. Cora Smith was taken in as a new member.

Mrs. Clare Walker received a number of pretty gifts in honor of her birthday. Mrs. Alexander, the hostess, gave each member a souvenir from Atlantic City where she was a recent visitor. The souvenirs were greatly appreciated by the members.

Club business was attended to. Mrs. Cora Smith and the same prize was given to Mrs. Laura Hawk.

On September 4, the T. Y. C. club will meet with Miss Ruth Pollock, Lutton street.

Lazar-Banko

A wedding ceremony was solemnized Thursday in the Greek Orthodox church parlor on South Mill and Reynolds street when Miss Anna Lazar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Lazar of West Pittsburg was united in marriage with Mike Banko, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Banko of West Pittsburg.

Miss Mary Yesko acted as maid of honor. Mike Polovcak was best man. The following assisted in the ceremony as flower girls: Misses Anna Chuhnan, Mary Kapraby, Kathryn Chuhnan, Helen Yesko, Anna Nudica, Mary Lakatos, Elizabeth Lazar, Mamie Beres, Anna Paps, Anna Kovac, and Margaret Seman.

Moonlight 500 club.

Mrs. Eva Shaffer of the Butler road received members of the Moonlight 500 club in her home Thursday evening and two tables of cards were in play with prizes being won by Vida Tetlow, Mrs. F. H. Johnson and Mrs. George Woodring, for high scores held at the close of play.

Plans to hold a corn roast on September 6 were made and the event will be at the home of Mrs. Ben Black, Winslow avenue.

The evening concluded with a dainty lunch served by the hostess, a bouquet of mixed flowers forming the centerpiece on the table.

Theta Nu Club

Theta Nu club members and their husbands enjoyed a turkey dinner at Cascade Park Thursday evening. A short business meeting was held and later the dinner was served. Decorations made the table attractive, Fall flowers being used.

Special guests were the husbands of the members and Miss Mary Hromyak of Detroit, Mich., Charlotte Whitman, Lois Aiken and Thomas Aiken, Jr., of this city.

The next regular meeting will be a corn and weiner roast for the members and husbands at the home of Mrs. C. D. Conner, 717 Pennsylvania avenue, September 25.

Service Star Picnic

Thirty members of the Service Star Legion enjoyed a picnic supper at Cascade Park Thursday evening with Mrs. Robert Adams, Mrs. Leslie A. Woolley and Mrs. E. J. Suber of the social committee in charge of arrangements.

Following dinner at a beautifully arranged table the members took in the park amusements. Mrs. Elizabeth McHanna of Meadville was an out of town guest.

September 11 the Legion will meet in regular session at the Legion Home on North Jefferson street.

Stoner-Kildoo Reunion
About 150 persons were present at the 46th annual reunion of the Stoner Kildoo families in Cascade Park August 27. A dinner was served. A business meeting was called by the president. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

James Weigle, president; William Weigle, vice president; Pearl McCracken, secretary; Mazie Stoner, treasurer.

The next reunion will be held at the same place on the last Wednesday of August 1931.

Crime Never Pays

HEROINES ARE OLDER NOW

AGE is slowly creeping upon the heroines of romantic love, but seems to be doing it in the characteristic way age has with women, very slowly. For the age of the heroine has advanced in more than 50 years only from 17 to 28.

Twenty-eight is now the average age for a heroine of a love story, the fact having been established by the examination of more than 27,000 scenarios submitted in a recent contest. Whereas, in 1870, so the judges declare, it was 17.

There is another peculiarity about the age of the heroine. In the scenarios submitted by women writers—and these were 60 per cent of the entire number—the age of the heroine averaged about five years more than the age of the heroine created by the man writer. Women will see nothing strange in this but will take it as a proof of the efficiency of the beauty parlor, whose secrets every woman knows, but which are intended for the deception of men.

But age is creeping upon the woman politician also, although she will probably not consider it a serious matter. For although a woman becomes a voter at 21, it is the woman of 35 who is going to decide the elections. So says the president of the League of Women Voters, who says 35 is the age of woman whose influence is to be felt in politics.

MONEY VS. FAME

The death in poverty of the inventor of the machine that brought fortunes for the promoting capitalists is a universal and eternal theme. Unpractical genius has furnished plots for countless melodramas and endless fiction. The average person can work himself up to a high state of righteous indignation over real or imaginary instances where the inventor has not reaped the rich harvest of his genius.

The belief is quite general that it is commonplace in the history of invention for inventors to fail to profit because of their lack of business sense. One famous instance is the telephone, although Bell's claim to the patent rights were upheld by the courts. It is natural for a sentimental society to side with the complaining inventor in such cases, in spite of the fact that pretenders and impostors have been known to have accused the rightful inventors of this sort of pirating.

What applies to invention is equally applicable to other fields of creative genius. There is the story of Benjamin R. Hanby, who as a student 60 years ago composed the popular song, "Darling Nellie Gray," sung by one generation from coast to coast and still among the old favorites. He sent the song to a Boston publisher. Receiving no reply from the publisher he assumed his composition had been rejected. Sometime later, learning his song had been published and ascribed to his authorship, he wrote to the publisher for his royalties. The publisher wrote in reply: "We have made the money and you the fame. That balances the account."

There are good reasons to believe that song writers and inventors today are as well versed in business methods as their publishers and financiers.

ANDREE'S DIARY AS A HUMAN DOCUMENT

When the full story of the Andree expedition is told it will be one of profound and painful interest. To the brief details already reported we are added such as the master of the vessel which brought the news of the discovery of the bodies is able to supply. The Horn expedition, which came upon them, found them well preserved in the ice. An oil stove beside Andree indicated that he attempted to cook a meal shortly before his death. Whether or not he outlived his companions is not yet clear. One authority thinks that he might have landed easily had he cut the balloon wire quickly enough, and suggests that the weight of the snow forced it down.

Fortunately the explorer's diary was found with him. It will be delivered to the Swedish authorities and presumably made public in due course. Its interest is likely to be more human than scientific. It will reveal, no doubt, the sufferings of Andree and his companions. But Arctic exploration has taken long strides since he disappeared, thirty-three years ago, and no other expedition under similar conditions, it is safe to say, will ever be attempted.

Not everything began in the Garden. There's the borrowing habit.

The only reasonable explanation of the husbands some girls get is lack of competition.

Why permit trivial disappointments to influence you?
Isn't it foolish to allow things, many of them insignificant in nature, to take comfort and joy out of life?

Why attach so much importance to whether you attend the theatre a certain night, to a game of golf, to going away on a short trip, to missing a train connection or not having a new suit at the promised time?

These are small matters in a lifetime, yet it is very likely that it is matters of no more importance than these which cause you much regret. You stew and fret and become generally ill-natured and put yourself into a state where it is impossible to enjoy the things that are vital.

Much of your happiness is the result of not being able to carry out plans for your own amusement.

Is being entertained the big thing in your life?

Are your social affairs your most desired form of happiness?

If so you don't go far in worthwhile undertakings.

If you can't fortify yourself against the little disturbing things, what will be the effect when you have to meet serious difficulties?

Aren't you too much of a play-boy?

BEFORE THE WEDDING

Be good to her, not in the trivial sense of utter disregard of all expense; Not with that cruel kindness which believes

The purse can set her smiling when she grieves,
But in that wider meaning of the word
That never shall her faith in you be shored.

Be good to her—from day to day to day—
Because you wish to, not because you must.
You take her life to glorify or mar.
Her happiness depends on what you are.

And though you lavish on her all your self,
'Tis all in vain unless you give yourself.
Be good to her, I ask than this no more—
That side by side you'll brave what lies before.

You cannot keep the touch of grief away,
Nor shut the door to sorrow's bitter day.
But you can say—for this you've power to do—
That no great hurt shall come to her through you.

About Noble Airmen.
And Crime And Graft.
And Russian Gold.
And Swimmers From The Sea.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1930, King Features Syn., Inc.)

IN THE AIR race from Los Angeles to Chicago, Wylie Post of Oklahoma, beat Lee Schoenherr by just 13 seconds. Very close for a race more than half way across the continent.

Mrs. Phoebe Omile won the Dixie Derby flight of the great Chicago air meeting.

The energetic Captain Von Gronau thinks he will "hop out there," land on Lake Michigan with his seaplane and see the great Chicago meeting. He surely ought to go, and so ought you, if you can.

A FINE YOUNG man is Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau, who came from Germany via Iceland, Greenland and Halifax, more than 4,000 miles in 47 hours of flying time, stopping on the way for fuel.

He will live to make that and longer flights in one "hop," and to cross the ocean in 20 hours.

ANIMOSITIES die out. Fliers of our army and navy welcome a Gronau who only a few years ago had his mind concentrated on bombing our ships and those of our allies.

He tells interesting, simple stories of his experience in the war and the various occasions on which he and his airplane were "shot down."

He ought to meet our crack American war flier, Eddie Rickenbacker, who brought down more German planes than any other American. Perhaps he was one of those that had the honor of bringing down the genial Gronau.

After the war Von Gronau went back to farming on his estate in Prussia, and then started a flying school. He flew over here to give one of his pupils a really good lesson.

MAYOR WALKER, head of the biggest, richest city in the world, invites approximately 100 conspicuous citizens to discuss privately conditions of graft, bribery, etc.

The Mayor is in earnest and has every reason to be.
But one hundred or 100,000 "leading citizens" could not deal with graft, bribery and crime while bootlegging and its allied trades take in yearly a bigger income than that of the United States government.

MOST STARTLING in the revelations of New York corruption, which include purchasing of public officials, magistrates, judges, etc., is the statement that one judge paid $200,000 for his seat on the bench.

The amount would be about $65,000 more than the total salary that he could earn in his 14-year term.

This means that someone else supplied the $200,000, and common sense indicates that the "somebody else" must have been a boss criminal, able, with the aid of a judge "owned by him," to get back his $200,000 with interest.

It is a strange picture of American civilization and "good government" in the year of our Lord 1930 and the eleventh year of the era of prohibition and bootlegging.

A BRITISH NEWSPAPER says that Stalin, boss of Russia expects trouble ending his power and has deposited in banks outside of Russia 20,000,000 pounds, about $100,000,000.

The statement probably is not accurate. Few men at the top ever realize that the "somebody else" believes it, or Danton, or Robespierre, who killed Danton, or Marat, stabbed in his bathtub by a girl.

But the mention of 20,000,000 pounds is interesting, and Stalin could easily send that much out of Russia.

Where there is so much money there will gradually come conservatism.

A TRUE STORY from Atlantic City, N. J., reminds you of Ulysses landing on the beach where a pretty princess and her young companions were playing ball in costumes that would surprise even our modern young ladies.

In the place of one Ulysses, three powerful sailors from Nova Scotia staggered through the surf, to the shore after swimming eight hours to get help for those left in distress on their schooner, the "Francis D." They said nothing about seeing any Nausicaa, but were grateful for hot drinks at the police station.

CRIME CONTINUES to develop new features.
In New York four are shot in connection with a "gambling slot machine racket."

Early yesterday, Joseph Silverman, aged 25, was shot. Later Martin Fishbaum, sitting in a restaurant, was ordered by four men, avengers of Silverman to come out and take a ride. Knowing what that meant, he replied, "Nothing doing, I stay here." They killed him.

Fishbaum took his medicine submissively, did not fight back when the murderers said, "All right, then, let him have it here."

BUT HARRY HARRIS, shot a little later in Villa Joe's restaurant, fought back when invited for a ride. He was alive when he reached the hospital, in spite of a bullet in the forehead and another near the ear, laughed when asked who shot him, and replied, "Don't you guys bother about that, these things are always taken care of."

He will die, and probably before long the man shot him will die. These things are taken care of.

THERE IS STILL money in the oil business. Thomas B. Slick, well named, it appears, dies and leaves $100,000,000.

That is a good deal of money although one American with a great deal more than $100,000,000 said that when he thought about Rockefeller or Carnegie he felt "like a Gipsy."

Legs.
How to lengthen skirts is a vital problem to the textile industry, which has been hard hit ever since the war. The Independent, a national weekly offers a solution. It says editorially:

"If the true inwardness of legs could be brought home to the killed sex by the power of pen and print, then with and humor would have served alike the interests of abstract beauty, the textile producers and many misguided sisters. For the overwhelming majority of American women, short skirts represent a triumph of faith over reality.

"Ninety per cent of all legs on exhibition are not worth looking at twice. These may be divided into the following categories:

"The grand piano—15 per cent.
"The channel stake—25 per cent.
"The ankleless or salt sack—20 per cent.
"The beauty or bowed—17½ per cent.
"The parenthetic or knock-knee—12½ per cent.

"The victims of fashion cannot be aware how silly they look and how they play into the hands of the other 10 per cent who are equipped physically to win admiration by exposing their calves. For our part, we are weary of legs. The biologic fact that woman is a two-legged animal has been amply demonstrated; it remains to be seen when woman is as smart as she was in the old days when an inch of stocking above the shoe tops was more alluring than bare skin above the knee in this emancipated era."

Romance Of Sea Emphasized In Rescue Of 300 From Tahiti

Another Triumph For Radio Is Staged In One Of World's Most Remote Spots After Steamer Has Become Disabled

Drab incidents of modern seafaring are forgotten by the world as romance is seen in the rescue of more than 300 persons from the liner Tahiti, after the radio, has called other craft to the aid of the vessel in distress. Added force is given to the incident by the fact that the rescue ship, the liner Ventura, was a bitter rival of the doomed craft. The loss of the Tahiti occurred in one of the loneliest parts of the Pacific ocean.

Referring to the fact that "the managers and the masters of the two ships strove for every possible advantage" in their competition for business, the PORTLAND OREGON JOURNAL continues: "There came a day when the radio of the Tahiti sounded from the waters of the Southern sea a despairing note. A propeller had slipped off, a shaft had broken, water was pouring in and by its smashing impact breaking down one supposedly water-tight compartment after another. Captain Meyer on the Ventura, 750 miles or more away, heard the SOS. Instantly, regardless of destination, inconvenience or loss, he put about his ship. An epochal race began, the competitor ship against disaster. . . . The Tahiti rests upon the bottom of the Pacific. But her officers and crew—all souls—are safe on the Ventura. Competition ends and brotherhood begins at the emergency call of SOS."

"It was another wireless victory in life saving," says the PASADENA STAR-NEWS, observing that "radio prevented a great disaster," and stating that "in the old days perhaps, all the passengers and the crew would have perished, with no means to summon help." The JACKSON CITIZEN PATRIOT remarks that "it is customary to say that modern inventions have robbed the sea of its old romance," but pointing out that "when the Tahiti finally went under the water, all of her people were safe on other boats," that paper declares: "That, in its own way, is quite as thrilling and glamorous as anything that the old days of wooden ships and square sails can offer. To fight and square sails can offer. To fight over hundreds of miles of hostile sea is adventure, no doubt; but isn't it also adventure to send a call for help through the empty air, and to hang 317 lives on the sputter of an electric spark in the cabin of a sinking ship?"

The wireless, any way you look at it, is a miracle. An age that can snatch hundreds of people from death in mid-ocean by means of a circle is an age in which romance is far from being dead."

With a similar tribute to the power of radio, the CHARLESTON (W. Va.) DAILY MAIL describes the rescue as "a reminder that while science and invention have lessened, they have not eliminated, the perils faced by those who go down to the sea in ships." The OAKLAND TRIBUNE emphasizes the fact that the attention of the country was turned from some endurance exploits to the "endurance and fortitude shown by men and women who waited on a sinking ship and to those others who hastened, crowding steam and engines, to the rescue. Even from one of the loneliest parts of the world, such as the South Pacific, the world came to the aid of the sinking ship. The world knew that, for a time, it looked as if all passengers must take to small boats; that the calls for distress had been heard, and that the Ventura and other craft were breaking all records to be there in time to help."

"Material for a modern saga of the sea, of heroism as great and adventure as thrilling as any of which the ancient sang," avers the LOS ANGELES EXPRESS, "was made when the Tahiti flashed through the ether her sign of distress, and instantly other ships, some of them hundreds of miles away, catching the soul-stirring S O S, turned on their courses and raced at full speed through desolate, uncharted wastes of the ocean to the rescue. A romance of the sea such as the imaginative brain of a Conrad never conceived was enacted in life under the Southern Cross. . . . The rescue furnishes a new chapter in maritime history, and something more. Those who have mourned because they feared science was robbing the world of romance may be comforted. No tale of the sea is more romantic than the daily reports of the wreck of the Tahiti and the race of the Ventura to her rescue."

"In contrast to the masters of several ships that have gone down in recent times," says the HOUSTON POST-DISPATCH, "Captain Totten comes out of this tragedy with the praise of the world in his ears. But the heroism of the captain and his crew, and the fact that no lives were lost, will not and should not preclude a thorough investigation into the causes of the sinking. Why should a propeller shaft have been broken? Was it defective when the ship left port? Was there the proper inspection? By what means the bulkhead is not capable of holding back the water? The fact that the ship was for? There was a failure somewhere, either of man or material. To find out which, and where, is a duty that the information gained may be used in preventing a repetition of a disaster of this kind."

"The rescue was a brilliant achievement," according to the SEATTLE DAILY TIMES, recording that "when the sea famel claimed the vessel, everybody was safe, as was most of the latter mail." The ROANOKE WORLD-NEWS calls it "a major triumph of wireless communication, as it is a major triumph of seamanship, and the 'CITIZEN' of OHIO STATE JOURNAL explains: "It has come to be expected that, in times of emergency on the sea, ships crews shall rise to heroic deeds, but such is not always the case. Discipline is not always of the best. Frequently following shipwrecks stories drift back of cowardice. In this instance the picture was perfect."

"The officers and crew of the Ventura have gained laurels and added to the prestige of this country's merchant marine," is the tribute of the SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS, with the added comment: "Only ten years ago her call probably would not have been heard, as few vessels plying the South Pacific then carried wireless sets. This country has been foremost in urging better facilities for protecting life at sea. All shalable vessels should be equipped with wireless, particularly in 'narrows,' such as the South Pacific, which is traversed by only a few ship-lanes."

The SALT LAKE DESERT NEWS is impressed by the fact that "in all the history and tradition of the sea, there has been nothing more dramatic."

A welcome relief from the stock California story about the bold bandit, the tinkling guitar and the delectable senorita named Dolores, the stories contained in this book are as much a part of the old Mission as the swallows nesting under its eaves.

"Con Dios me acuesto
"Con Dios me levanto
"Con la gracia de Dios
"Y la del Espiritu Santo."

"With God I lie down with God I arise; with the grace of God and the Holy Ghost."

Another one:
"A mi cama de canto a canto
"Gue no liegue cosa mala
"Mas que Dios
"Y el Espiritu Santo."

"To my bed frob edge to edge left no evil come; only God and the Holy Ghost."

About 40 years ago P. T. Barnum bought "Jumbo" from the Regents park zoo and left his affinity behind, and a favorite ditty was:

Then wh, did you say you do

Man Divorced 13 Times Says Women Are All Alike

'Just Find Their Weakness And The Opposite Sex Is Yours To Command,' Says Texan Preparing For His Fourteenth Marriage

EL PASCO, Tex., Aug. 29.—Take it from Bruce W. Steele, who has been divorced 13 times and is on the verge of getting his papers for the 14th time, when a man really sets out to make a woman love him, there's nothing the woman can do about it except give in.

"Women are all alike," says Steele. "I've had enough experience to know. Find their weakness and you have them."

Steele was first married—"Yes, Mary was the first one," he says—in 1911, and Mary divorced him a year later. Then the fun, or the trouble, began.

He was traveling about the country as a boxer with a show.

"We'd hit a town and I'd get a girl crazy over me and we'd get married," he explains. "Then I'd move on and she'd get a divorce. I married some of the show girls."

After various marriages involving girls named Ruth, Goldie, Annie and Rose, Steele married one Fannie in 1914 and stayed married until 1923. Then Fannie divorced him, charging infidelity, and he married some one else.

He was divorced again and a year later he remarried Fannie, who divorced him once more after only a few months of married life. A year or so ago he and Fannie were married a third time, and now Fannie is suing once more.

"Watch me bring her around," says Steele. "I'll bet she dismisses the suit. I can make any woman do what I want. If I want them to love me, they love me. If I want them to get a divorce, they get it."

"Find her weakness and you have her. With some women it's music; with others books, etc. Just find that weakness and play up to it and you've got 'em. I'm out to beat Solomon's record. Women who love me keep on loving me. The only reason they get divorced is jealousy."

the members of the climbers' club and they also brought flowers from their gardens and they then visited the garden at the Martin home on County Line street as well as some of the neighboring gardens.

The young people in these classes range from 4 to 12 years old and Miss Martin says the little folks show great adeptness at the arrangement of their gardens, they seem eager to gather all the information they can about the various flowers and some of them have had lovely flowers throughout the summer, which they have planted and tended themselves.

Philadelphians Home Damaged By Blast

Neighbors Carry Out Threat To Dynamite Home Of Man Who Rented To Negroes

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—Many threats against the life and property of William Glick of North 52nd street because he rented a dwelling on 60th street to a negro family were climaxed today by the dynamiting of his 52nd street home.

Houses for several blocks around were rocked by the concussion.

The bombing followed the renting of the 60th street dwelling to Mrs. Lucille Quillen, colored, on July 5th. Mrs. Quillen was permitted to move into the neighborhood despite the protests of the families in adjoining homes.

Since the renting of the property to the Negro family, however, Glick has received numerous telephone warnings that "despite measures" would be taken against him unless he disposed of the Negro tenant. He sought police protection and this week after he had been under guard day and night for almost a month without any signs of trouble the police guard was dispensed with.

The dynamiting followed.

Underwood Says Tax Statements Due Taxpayers

Believes It Would Diminish Amounts Put In Hands Of Collectors

"I am very strongly in favor of having the county send notices to taxpayers of the amount of their taxes," said Attorney E. M. Underwood this morning as he came out of the county treasurer's office after paying his county tax.

"I supposed that a five per cent discount could be secured, but when I went to pay I found that the discount limit expired on August 1. If I had received notice of the amount of my taxes, with the date of the discount limit, it would have been paid in time for the discount."

"I presume that there are many others like myself who did not know when the discount limit expired. There are probably many more who do not know that if the taxes are not paid this month they go into the hands of the collector on September 1st and five per cent will be added."

"I think a taxpayer is entitled to a written statement showing the amount of his taxes, the date to which a discount is given, the date at which taxes can be paid at face and the date when they go into the hands of the collector."

"I am satisfied that scores of people would send their checks if statements were mailed out, with the result that there would not be such large amounts go into the hands of collectors. The public service corporations recognize the fact that statements are necessary and so send them out regularly. If they waited for people to come to their offices to see how much they owed their collections would drop off amazingly."

"At present it is necessary to go to the county treasurer's office to get a statement or mail a request for one with a stamped envelope. This should not be. Taxpayers are entitled to a written statement each year, and steps toward that end should be taken before another year."

Youngstown Men Are Heavily Fined

Hitch Occurs In Plan For Troop Rifle Range

New Castle guardsmen, several days ago jubilant over prospects of leasing a plot of ground characterized as a "natural" shooting range are now in doubt whether the range will be assigned to them within a short time.

The papers leasing the plot of ground 1,000 feet from the city line between the Harlansburg and County Line roads had been signed last week by C. H. Andrews, secretary and treasurer of the New Castle Mining & Clay Products company owners of the 10 acre plot on which the proposed rifle range is to be located, and Lieut. Harvey G. Bintrim, commander of Troop F.

In the instance of the New Castle agreement the added clause caused rejection of the agreement by government authorities when the signed statement was delivered to them. The papers were returned with a communication stating that the government will not hold responsibility.

Lieut. Harvey Bintrim has stated to the owners of the land that he could be held responsible in the advent of an accident. Now the company is endeavoring to learn whether the commander of the troop has sufficient authority to be held responsible for an accident.

"That's our general superintendent—son of the president—he began at the bottom and worked up—started in as an elevator boy, right after he left college."

"How long ago was that?"

Large Crowd In Attendance At Corn And Wiener Feast At Boyd Home

Corn and wiener roast held last evening under the auspices of New Castle Council No. 408, United Commercial Travelers, at the home of former Sheriff and Mrs. J. H. Boyd at Princeton, was a highly successful event.

There were 150 people in attendance and the place was attractively arranged with tables and chairs on the lawn for the convenience of the people present. At the conclusion of the evening to show the appreciation of the assembled guests, a handsome cushion was presented to Mrs. Boyd.

Woman Insistent Officials Used Unfair Methods

Uniontown Woman Contends That She Was Given
"Third Degree" By Officials

WANTED KNOWLEDGE IN DONAHUE DEATH

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29.—Still insistent on the details of her sensational story of brutal "third degree" methods she claims Fayette county detectives employed, Mrs. Helen Hess, an attractive, middle-aged matron, faced her cell in Allegheny county jail today awaiting further hearing before a United States commissioner on charges of violating the Mann white slave act.

Mrs. Hess declared the Fayette county officers handcuffed her to a wall in the county detective's office, placed a dummy figure of Constable Jack Donahue, who was slain last year, in a nearby corner of the office, darkened the room and employed tear gas bombs in an effort to draw from her an admission of knowledge concerning Donahue's death.

The woman was ordered held in jail in default of $2,000 bail by the commissioner yesterday pending further hearing on the federal charge. James Crockett, 35, of Washington, Pa., a co-defendant in the government's suit, was released under bond.

Complaint Filed.
A complaint filed by a special agent of the department of justice charged Mrs. Hess and Crockett with persuading and enticing Mrs. Velma Coll, 24, to leave Morgantown, W. Va., and to cross the state line into Masontown, Fayette county, for immoral purposes. The complaint was filed on June 3 last and the alleged violation of the federal statute occurred on July 15, 1929.

After hearing the charge read at the morning session, Mrs. Hess demanded that Mrs. Coll be produced by the government, contending that Mrs. Coll's own testimony at the coroner's inquest refuted the government's allegations.

In compliance with her request Mrs. Coll was produced at the afternoon session and testified she met Mrs. Hess Crockett in Morgantown, talked with Mrs. Hess and was met the following day by the defendants in Point Marion, Pa., and taken by automobile to Masontown. She testified that Mrs. Hess received part of her earnings.

Defends Self.
While a crowded courtroom marveled at her composure, Mrs. Hess acted as her own attorney and calmly asked a further continuance of the hearing, pending an investigation of testimony given by Mrs. Coll at the Donahue inquest.

During the interim of the two sessions, Mrs. Hess related the alleged "third degree" treatment meted out to her. In connection with the death of Constable Donahue, whose bullet-riddled body was found in an automobile near Uniontown, Mrs. Hess said:

"Detectives working on the Donahue case had a theory that the murder was committed at my home—that Donahue had a quarrel with a maid at my home and that the murder followed.

"On May 25 my automobile was stopped, while I was marketing, and I was taken to the police station at South Brownsville, where I was questioned. Later I was taken to the state police barracks at Greensburg and then to the office of the county detectives. There I was placed in a narrow dark room and handcuffed to the wall. In a corner of the room was a stuffed dummy supposed to resemble Donahue and I was asked if I knew who it was. When I would reply that I did not, a picture of the murdered man would be shoved toward me.

Offered $5,000.
"After many such efforts a tear bomb was exploded in the room and I suffered great agony from its effects. It was kept in the room 14 hours. Finally with the aid of a chair I managed to tear the handcuff from the wall and made my escape from the building. While almost blinded from the gas I managed to reach the office of my attorney. The terrible ordeal which I went through made me ill for several weeks.

"Another time a man came to me and offered me $5,000 if I would change testimony that I gave at the coroner's inquest, involving the time a certain man visited my home, which I refused to do."

Charges Denied.
UNIONTOWN, Pa., District Attorney John B. Adams, today denied charges made by Helen Hess that she was given the "third degree" at Uniontown when questioned about the murder of Constable Jack Donahue.

According to the District Attorney the woman was manacled only once when the detective who was questioning her was called from the room which necessitated her being left alone.

"At no time was she mistreated and the charge that tear gas was released in the place is absolutely false," Adams said.

County Schools Are Ready For Opening

Three Hundred And Twenty
Teachers And Over 10,000
Pupils Will Start To Work
Next Week

Every school in Lawrence county has been provided with teachers and will be ready to start promptly next week, according to County Superintendent of Schools, John C. Syling. This is the first time in several years that all schools have been ready at this time.

Some of the schools will open on Monday, some Tuesday and the balance on Wednesday.

In Shenango township an additional bus, capable of seating 70 pupils has been secured. This will make the seventh bus to be operated in Shenango township. About 700 pupils will be transported in them. There are also over 100 other pupils who attend the Shenango township consolidated school for whom no busses are needed. Boyd and Conner are the only school districts from which pupils are not transported, these schools having individual teachers.

No bus transportation will be in use in Neshannock township this year. The two busses, owned by the township, are housed near what was formerly called the consolidated school. It will not be a consolidated school this year, as there are six other schools in the township open. However there are enough pupils within a radius of one and one-half miles of the school building to fill all four rooms.

County Superintendent Syling reports that there are 320 teachers and between 10,000 and 11,000 pupils, will begin work next week.

Corn Borer, Though Decided Pest, Considered Unusually Ingenious

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Pest though he is, the corn borer, to give him his due, is smart.

That is, he seems exceptionally ingenious for an insect.

The department of agriculture's bureau of entomology (bugs) has been much impressed by the creature's cleverness in adapting himself to the difficult living conditions created for his species by the recent hot, dry weather.

In this respect he has the boll weevil completely outclassed.

The borer and the weevil alike require a good bit of humidity.

Whereas the weevil, however, did not know what to do about it when the cotton country experienced an unusually arid summer a few years ago, and consequently perished in quintillions (probably at least as many as that), the borer took measures early in the corn belt's 1930 growing season to make the utmost of the ensuing couple of months' moisture supply, and apparently has come through the drought in pretty fair shape.

It is true that Associate Chief A. L. Quaintance of the entomology bureau does not speak of the borer's achievement in a congratulatory vein.

Viewing the matter as a human being, he refers to it with regret. Inasmuch as the corn crop had to suffer, he wishes the borer had suffered correspondingly—or, still better, considerably more.

Nevertheless, considering it from the borer's angle, he has to admit that it was a creditable performance.

Normally, according to Dr. Quaintance, the borer's preference is to operate toward the top of a corn stalk where the eating presumably is tenderest; the weevil feeds on the cotton boll.

Thus far it is a mere choice of diets.

The essential difference between the two bugs is that the weevil, finding his cotton boll too dry to sustain him in a rainless season, gives up in despair, dies, desiccates, and blows away, while the borer, a-thirst high up on his corn stalk, descends to a lower level and drills in again, which the stalk is chunkier and juicier, and it is comparatively cool.

"It has been interesting to note," the doctor told me, in grudging admiration, "how the drought changed the insect's habits."

The dry year in Dixie thinned out the weevil to such an extent that cotton fields were relatively free of him the following summer—though he propagated himself back into pestiferousness later on. As for 1930, it has not been so dry in the south as in the corn states.

And in the latter the borer, by reason of his superior acumen, scarcely has suffered at all?

"We can tell better in 1931," said the doctor.

"The borer," continued the entomological assistant chief, "has shown remarkable ability at getting through the drought, but it may prove to have been a great year for his parasites, too."

"Our insect pests have parasites, as I suppose everyone knows, which prey on the pests, and are very helpful in keeping them down."

"And a dry season is extremely favorable to parasites."

"They are mighty small and storms destroy them in prodigious numbers. Since this has been a summer of few storms, they are likely to have multiplied tremendously."

"If so, perhaps a surprise is in store for the corn borer."

In all seriousness, have insects any sense?

The doctor laughed and shook his head.

"I don't think so," he answered, "not even of those we are accustomed to refer to as really intelligent, like the ants and bees."

"They have an instinct which leads them to do the things necessary to perpetuate their species, but it is not my belief that they are capable of even the most primitive process of reasoning."

The doctor laughed and shook his head.

"I don't think so," he answered, "not even of those we are accustomed to refer to as really intelligent, like the ants and bees."

moisture supply, and apparently has come through the drought in pretty fair shape.

It is true that Associate Chief A. L. Quaintance of the entomology bureau does not speak of the borer's achievement in a congratulatory vein.

Viewing the matter as a human being, he refers to it with regret. Inasmuch as the corn crop had to suffer, he wishes the borer had suffered correspondingly—or, still better, considerably more.

Nevertheless, considering it from the borer's angle, he has to admit that it was a creditable performance.

Normally, according to Dr. Quaintance, the borer's preference is to operate toward the top of a corn stalk where the eating presumably is tenderest; the weevil feeds on the cotton boll.

Thus far it is a mere choice of diets.

The essential difference between the two bugs is that the weevil, finding his cotton boll too dry to sustain him in a rainless season, gives up in despair, dies, desiccates, and blows away, while the borer, a-thirst high up on his corn stalk, descends to a lower level and drills in again, which the stalk is chunkier and juicier, and it is comparatively cool.

"It has been interesting to note," the doctor told me, in grudging admiration, "how the drought changed the insect's habits."

The dry year in Dixie thinned out the weevil to such an extent that cotton fields were relatively free of him the following summer—though he propagated himself back into pestiferousness later on. As for 1930, it has not been so dry in the south as in the corn states.

And in the latter the borer, by reason of his superior acumen, scarcely has suffered at all?

"We can tell better in 1931," said the doctor.

"The borer," continued the entomological assistant chief, "has shown remarkable ability at getting through the drought, but it may prove to have been a great year for his parasites, too."

"And a dry season is extremely favorable to parasites."

"They are mighty small and storms destroy them in prodigious numbers. Since this has been a summer of few storms, they are likely to have multiplied tremendously."

"If so, perhaps a surprise is in store for the corn borer."

In all seriousness, have insects any sense?

The doctor laughed and shook his head.

"They have an instinct which leads them to do the things necessary to perpetuate their species, but it is not my belief that they are capable of even the most primitive process of reasoning."

This stiff black velvet evening dress was one of the models shown recently at a New York fashion show. It has tiered skirt and shoulder straps that tie with a bow. The normal waistline is fitted with a soft girdle which ties in a large bow at the side.

Find Rare Painting In French Church

(Special To The News)
CEVILLE, Aug. 29.—A painting which several experts attribute to Raphael has recently been discovered in one of the old churches here. It represents the Virgin Mary with Jesus and Saint John, and is a remarkable state of conservation. The picture was given to the church in 1761 by a Grande Dame of the Spanish nobility, Dona Maria Anna Perez de Garato Ochoa, who wrote in her testament: "I bequeath to the church Saint Antoine of Seville a painting representing the Virgin with Jesus and Saint John, excellent work of Raphael de Urbino."

Vets To Visit Hale Birthplace

(International News Service)
SOUTH CONVENTRY, Conn., Aug. 25.—A pilgrimage to the birthplace of Nathan Hale will form a part of the American Legion convention when it assembles at Boston in October. The house built in the early 1700s is now owned by George Dudley Seymour, of New Haven, who has restored it as early as possible to conditions of Hale's boyhood, and who has established a farmer to keep the place well run. Now that Legion convention is nearing, men of the town are posting the roadsides with attractive sign boards and getting ready to entertain visitors.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

ENOUGH WORDS have been written and spoken on the subject of wheat, in the last few weeks, to keep the country supplied with language for years ahead.

I have contributed my share, and have no desire to add further to the output. But there are two or three circumstances of the wheat situation that have not, as far as I know, received very much public notice.

The first of these is the fact that the Grain Corporation, the big co-operative selling concern promoted by the Federal Farm board, is now completely established as a sales agency. Relations with the big flour mill buyers have been established, and the mills are buying co-operative wheat in fair quantities.

There is, you must realize, a great deal of "trading" in wheat. That is what the futures markets of the grain exchanges are for. But every bushel of actual wheat must be sold to some flour mill, here or in foreign countries.

Thus in addition to its selling efforts right here in the United States, the Grain Corporation has now opened offices in the principal grain centers of foreign countries, and is beginning to sell wheat direct to any one who will buy it.

Farming never has, in all its history, had any such machinery for selling its grain. And while much wheat will certainly continue to go through the usual private trade channels, the co-operative wheat will, I expect, make a secure place for itself in all markets.

Other aspects of the wheat situation are not so promising, at this moment.

For one thing, few people realize that our capacity for wheat production is enormous. We now grow from 800,000,000 to 900,000,000 bushels of the grain, of all kinds, and that is a lot of wheat. But we could add another four hundred million bushels to that, or double it, just as easily.

In one particular section, the Panhandle country of Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and Colorado—an area as large as all of Ohio—we could raise the whole 600,000,000 bushels that our population now eats.

This is an encouraging outlook for the bread-eater, but not so good for the wheat grower. It means that wheat production will surely continue on a competitive price basis. The farmers who cannot grow cheap wheat may just as well get out of this business, or least not depend on it to furnish much of his cash income.

More than all else, it shows how completely grain production is subject to unyielding laws of supply and demand, of production costs and freight rates, of popular eating habits and world conditions.

Newest Modes Cover Defects Of Older Women

By ALICE LANGEIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Aug. 29.—New Models for mother and made to accentuate her most attractive points and cover up and defects. The disappearance of flapper fashions and the putting on of longer skirts was a boon to many younger women, not to mention those of mature years. And luckily, the designers have chosen for another season, as well as the normal waistline which is of course the most natural place for the belt.

This doesn't mean, however, that the belt be drawn in tightly. There must be a falling bit of drapery or a blouse waist to improve the line.

Even the color scheme selected for the coming season seems to suit mother. Bright colors are certainly out, and in their stead have come in soft, rich, subdued shades, such as deep wine-red, autumn leaf brown, soft greys, lapislazzuli blue, black, white and lovely dull golds for evening.

Worth is making a charming evening gown for mother of chiffon on black and white shading into pure soft grey. A pointed hemline gives grace to ankle and feet no longer in the prime of youth and the shirring at the waistline hides any hipline defects.

Grey crepe de Chine makes a charming afternoon ensemble for the mature woman with complete absence of any fussy details. The sleeves are set in in a squared raglan fashion and the collar faced in contrasting blue which is very becoming to the older face.

Berlin To Hear Edison's Voice

(International News Service)
BERLIN, Aug. 29.—A special greeting, spoken by Thomas A. Edison for a phonograph record, will be heard at the great radio and phonograph exhibition, the "Phonoschau," being held on the Berlin exposition grounds from Aug. 22 to 31. All the progressive talking machine models constructed by the American inventor will be shown in chronological order in a special Edison room, together with exhibits dealing with his work in co-operation with Germany's pioneer scientists, including Helmholtz.

Credit Bureau Aids People With Problems

Many Residents Have Mistaken Idea Concerning Protective Organization

Organization Was Formed To Build Up Credit Of Citizens Of Community

Many New Castle people have a mistaken idea of the purpose and function of the New Castle Credit Exchange. Manager Ray F. Hall stated yesterday, the idea being current in many minds that the organization was formed to tear down the credit of citizens, rather than to assist them in building it up.

The idea has been expressed frequently by those who are not familiar with the functions of the organization that the Credit Exchange is for the merchants only and that it is always trying to get something on the individual to kill his credit.

No more mistaken idea could be conceived than this, he said the Credit Exchange was organized and is supported by the merchants and professional men of the city. These men are in business to make money and the only way in which they can do this is to sell their merchandise or service to the citizens of the community. If this is the case, Mr. Hall pointed out, they would have no object in supporting an institution that is trying to ruin anyone's credit and would not do so.

Eliminates Bad Accounts The Credit Exchange was formed primarily for the protection of the business man against the unprincipled buyer who has no intention of paying his bills. It can be readily seen that the merchant is going to be ahead if he can eliminate this class of accounts from his ledgers, it was explained.

This not only benefits the merchant, but also aids the individual who is prompt in his payments. The merchants by eliminating those accounts which must eventually be charged off as bad debts, cuts down his overhead and enables him to sell his goods for less money to the honest buyer.

Another feature of the exchange's service to the public, is the ease with which the public can obtain credit when they have a satisfactory record on the files of the exchange. Mr. Hall explained, "Even though a total stranger to the merchant, you can now walk into his store and ask for credit. They in turn can call the Credit Exchange, secure your record in a moment, and the merchandise will be turned over to you immediately. Your paying record flashes over the wire to the merchant 'credit is good'."

"Perhaps a time may come," he explained further, "when the buyer may feel that a certain bill should not be paid because of some dispute over the merchandise purchased. The person determines he will not pay for the article and lets it go at that. The account gets onto the files of the Credit Exchange and the only record they have there is that the account was opened on such-and-such a date and never paid. It is not known at the Credit Exchange that it is a disputed account. It would be far better in cases of this kind for the person to come to the Credit Exchange and explain the matter to them. This can be placed on record and will not stand as a black mark against the individual's credit."

Unfortunate Man Aided Mr. Hall told of an instance of this kind which happened only recently, where a young man who had been burned out and lost all his possessions came here to seek employment. He applied for credit and his record was investigated in his old place of residence. He was turned down for credit by the local merchant because it was shown that he had left a number of unpaid accounts behind, having not been in position to pay them off when he left. An investigation was started by the Credit Exchange and the true circumstances were learned. The young man had an excellent reputation in his old place of residence and those who had accounts against him stated that they felt he would eventually pay them off. His employment record was checked and it was found he was a steady, reliable worker. When these facts were related to the merchant, he had no hesitancy in extending him credit. His record has turned out good.

"It isn't just this way that the Credit Exchange helps a man's credit rather than injures it," Mr. Hall stated. "It is this kind of service that we are proud of and the more records we can clear, the better we feel. We are glad to have people call on us and let us help them get their credit record clear. This service is free to the public because it is maintained by the merchants of the city, and will pay the public big dividends if they are willing to cooperate."

RICH HILL

MISSIONARY MEETING The Ladies Missionary society held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Howard Boyles on the East Brook road Wednesday afternoon. A short business meeting was held after which a delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE AND GROOM A shower was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brennenman, a recent bride and groom, at Volant on Wednesday evening by the young people of Rich Hill. Social chat and cards were the chief pastimes of the evening.

At a seasonable hour a delicious lunch was served by Hazel Reed, Anna Welker and Mrs. Walter Barkley. The honor couple received many gifts. Those present were the Misses Anna Welker, Gladys Sontag, Hazel Reed, Irene, Ruth and Viola Cotton, Gertrude McKissick, Hazel Mae Giles, Martha Wilson, Elizabeth Morrow and the Messrs Earl Sontag, Henry Sholler, Walter Bush, Henry Wilson, Harold Welker, Paul Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Barkley and the honor guests.

BLOOD HOUNDS PUT ON TRAIL

(International News Service)
EUGENE, Ore., Aug. 29.—Two officers are dead today and two others are wounded while a posse of nearly 75 officers and infuriated citizens are trailing their wounded attacker, H. Sutherland, moonshiner, with bloodhounds through the dense wilderness of the Mohawk river valley 20 miles northeast of Eugene.

The dead men are Joe Saunders, deputy game warden, and Oscar Duley, Eugene policeman and county deputy.

Lee Bown, son of Sheriff Harry Bown, and Rodney Reach, deputy, are in the hospital here with leg wounds and will recover.

Saunders was shot through the heart and died almost instantly when with Young Bown and Reach, they were ambushed near a cabin where Sutherland had barricaded himself after shooting and fatally wounding Duley. The deputy was shot twice in the head and three times through his body.

Sutherland slipped from his cabin refuge early today. Sheriff Bown reported, and headed for the dense timber leaving a trail of blood.

Two blood hounds were summoned to the scene and placed on the trail. The sheriff declared it would be only a matter of hours before the attacker will be captured.

Sutherland has had the reputation of being an old time mountain moonshiner and seller of whiskey. Sheriff Bown said.

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29.—Pittsburgh's taxi strike, believed a closed issue today was blamed for the shooting of one man and the arrest of another when an outbreak ensued between Union and non-union cab drivers here.

Charles Carson, 21, a clerk, was rushed to Mercy hospital suffering from bullet wounds in his left shoulder and right hand and was placed under arrest on a suspicious person charge when he refused to explain how he received his injuries.

Benjamin Worden, 27, and Victor Willette, 23, Union cab drivers who took Carson to the hospital, also were held by police.

Carson was a passenger last night in a cab driven by James Stone, 26, a strikebreaker in the conflict here several months ago, when two men followed Stone's cab and engaged the driver in a road fight until Stone fled.

Stone told police that as he ran from the scene he heard three shots fired.

George Washington Go-

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 29.—The old grist mill, once the property of George Washington, and a historic landmark in Perry township, has decayed to such an extent that hope of preservation has virtually been abandoned.

According to visitors at the mill, it will be practically impossible to save for posterity one of the country's few revolutionary period grist mills which a year ago could have been restored and made into a national shrine.

The mill is now a mass of ruins. The rusted machinery stands exposed to the weather; the millrace has grown high with weeds, its babbling gossip hushed for all time.

The mill has stood almost 160 years, and even in its advanced stages it was useful. Time and hard usage have now made it decrepit. Lightning also done its share toward damaging it.

Planes Tangle

(International News Service)
DES MOINES, Aug. 29.—Two persons were in a serious condition at local hospitals and six others are less seriously injured today as the result of a mid-air collision of two planes at the Iowa State fair yesterday afternoon.

The accident occurred during a race between members of the stunting troupe, the Three Flying Sons of Guns, and caused one plane to crash, striking several persons as it fell.

Vernon Devote, 24, of Mitchellville, Ia., and Harold Waller, 10, Norwalk, Ia., spectators suffered fractured skulls.

The mishap occurred during a race when Lieut. Leo Allen attempted to swoop to the left and below the ship of Lieut. N. Y. Younglove. The two planes caught, Allen's tearing through the side of a tent. Younglove righted his ship and landed.

Marriage Law Fails To Cut Weddings

California Finds Couples Go Across Line To Nevada

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29.—Youth of Los Angeles will be served and served quickly at the altar of matrimony even if a trip out of the state is necessary.

Rosamond Rice, in charge of the county marriage bureau, made this discovery when she looked over the statistics of her office for the month of July.

The report showed that 2719 applications were filed in July of 1929 compared with 2458 for July of this year.

"Quite a few couples have cancelled their license applications," Miss Rice said, "stating they intended to go to Reno, Nev., Yuma, Ariz., or Tijuana, Mexico."

All of the young people admitted they didn't like to wait for the end of the three-day limit California requires between the day of application and final granting of the license.

The law which is turning Yuma, Reno and Tijuana into Gretna Greens for California was playfully called the "gin wedding" law because one of its backers declared that young folks wed during gay parties who would remain single if three days were given them to consider their action.

Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, sister of the late President, has joined the anti-prohibition faction of the Republican Party. Mrs. Robinson, long an advocate of temperance, declared that the dry law now in effect was not an effective means for obtaining it.

PRIZE WINNER OF ASBURY PARK BABY PARADE

This float of "Byrd Home with Little Miss America" won the Grand National Prize in the Asbury Park, N. J., Baby Parade. Little Gloria Matthews, of Lakewood, N. J., was the "Miss America." The parade, thirty-ninth annual event of its kind, was viewed by 100,000 spectators, including Governor Morgan F. Larson of New Jersey and his staff.

Peru's Deposed Ruler

After ruling Peru as dictator for eleven years, President Augusto B. Leguia, shown above, was forced to resign and flee the country aboard the cruiser Grau. The opposition to his administration split into two parts, threatening the South American Republic with revolution despite the formation of a military Cabinet.

ONE IN EVERY TWENTY-FIVE CARS IS STOLEN

By ROGER LEIDY
International News Service Staff

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—If you are a car owner there is exactly one chance in 25 that you will have cause to report your car stolen during the year.

If your car is stolen the chances are 100 to one that it will be recovered.

But—if you keep the machine locked—the chance of it being stolen is almost negligible.

These facts were based on figures presented by Capt. Bernard McDonald, aid of the automobile detail of the San Francisco police department.

During the last fiscal year 4913 cars were reported stolen, or about one twenty-fifth of the total number registered to San Francisco owners.

Of this number 4868 were recovered leaving only 45 missing, or approximately one hundredth of the total stolen.

A total of 359 cars stolen outside of San Francisco were recovered here while 314 cars stolen here were found outside the city.

Nearly 300 less automobiles were reported stolen during the last fiscal year than in the previous year.

Decrease in auto thefts, Capt. McDonald believes, is the result of the campaign conducted by the department to encourage all car owners to keep their machines, when not in use locked.

"Few locked cars are bothered by thieves," declared Capt. McDonald. "They usually pick on machines which are easily accessible and in which the engines still are hot."

700 Climbers Reach Top Of Long's Peak

(International News Service)
LOVELAND, Colo., Aug. 29.—Long's peak—once a spot that was accessible to only the most seasoned mountain climbers—has been reached by more than 700 persons thus far this season. Harold Dunning, Loveland climber, who has reached the summit thirty-eight times, announced that an average of twenty persons daily have registered in the mountain club register on the peak.

Louis Giddings, 20-year-old University of Colorado student from Caldwell, Tex., holds the season's time record for the climb. Giddings covered the 8½ mile climb over a trail that rises 5,125 feet in altitude, in 4 hours 34 minutes. The average round trip requires twelve hours.

WOMAN PLANS DARING SAIL ACROSS OCEAN

PARIS, Aug. 29.—More and more French women are coming into the public light. Emulating the lone sailor of the Pacific, Alain Gerbault, the well-known yachtswoman, Madame Jeanne Heriot, is now making plans for a daring voyage from Le Havre to Los Angeles via the Panama Canal.

In her tiny twenty-foot sailing vessel Madame Heriot expects to take part in the Olympic Games regattas in this yacht which is one of the miniature fleet she possesses.

This slim frail-looking French woman is an accomplished sailor as well as the wife of Grands Magasins du Louvre, one of Paris' leading department stores. All her life she has been an enthusiastic yachtswoman and interested in navigation. She believes that only those who handle sailing ships really know anything about the sea.

She had her first racing yacht built for her in 1912 and afterwards bought from the Kaiser his famous Meteor IV which she rechristened "L'Aile" and aboard which she cruised more than five thousand miles' spending eight out of twelve months at sea. She has a new racing yacht built for her every year and is the proud owner of a little fleet of ten, comprising four six-metre yachts and six eight-metre ones. The yacht which goes to Los Angeles will be worked by her usual racing crew but Madame Heriot expects to carry out much of the navigation work herself.

City Hopes To Acquire Ground

Councilman Clayton Reeves today, during councilmanic meeting at the city building requested Solicitor R. McKinney White to communicate with officials of the Penn-Ohio Electric company for the purpose of the city acquiring a small piece of ground the company owns in Sampson street between Grant and State. It is a private right of way, according to Reeves.

Violations Soar As Close For A.B.C. Crusade Nears

Rapidly nearing its close, the A. B. C. safety campaign of the New Castle Motor Club again reached a new record of traffic violations on Thursday evening, when motorists taking part in the crusade reported 56 more violations, making a total of 323 since the opening at the beginning of this month.

The newest violations were:
Parking double, 11; parking where parking is prohibited, 3; parking without lights, 1; parking too near a corner or intersection, 4; driving through red light, 3; driving through stop signs, 9; driving through safety zone, 3; driving only one headlight, 4; starting, stopping and turning without giving signal, 6; encroaching upon crosswalks, 3.

New Subway Recalls Old Horse Car Days

By LAURENCE DUMOND
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The building of the Eighth Avenue subway, third of the tunnels to be bored through the length of Manhattan Island, has called forth newspaper stories to the effect that when this line is opened more passengers will have seats, and all will have better service.

It is interesting in this connection to look back through the old files at what the press had to write on the opening of the first rapid transit line, the old horse cars that whisked busy New Yorkers about at a speed of 10 to 12 miles an hour, a date beyond the wildest hope until it was actually consummated.

There was prejudice to be overcome then. People did not want rails to be laid down in the middle of shady streets, so the first line did not dare to run down into lower Broadway.

"There is to be a ride of 30 or 40 rods on the Harlem Road today," announced the Commercial Advertiser on November 14, 1832.

"After the fatigue of the excursion, which, we believe, will be along the whole line that is completed, say from Spring street in the Bowery up to the Reservoir—over which, if the horses are fleet, it will take them nearly two minutes to pass—there is to be a grand Rail Road dinner."

"It is expected that the stock will rise with every fresh bumper (of beer)—but will fall tomorrow. Some of the buyers will fall tonight."

A throng lined the Bowery for the sight, and the next day the Morning Courier and New York Enquirer give hilarious accounts.

"The company together with the Mayor, corporation and strangers of distinction, left the City Hall in carriages to the place of depot near Union Square, where two splendid cars each with two horses were in waiting.

"These cars are made low with broad iron wheels, which fit the flanges of the rail road after an improved model from the Liverpool and Manchester cars. . . . each capable of containing outside and inside full 40 passengers." (Outside meant on the roof).

"The company was soon seated and the horses trotted off in handsome style with great ease, at the rate of about 12 miles an hour followed by a great number of private barouches and horsemen."

"Every window in the Bowery filled. Those who made violent objection to laying down these tracks and fancied a thousand dangers to the passing traveler now look at the work with pleasure and surprise. Carriages of all kinds cross and recross the railway without impediment."

Policeman Boasts Of 47 Years Service

Patrick Murphy Nearly Half Century On Muskegon Force

(International News Service)
MUSKEGON, Mich., Aug. 29.—Patrick Murphy, 65, veteran sergeant police here can boast of 47 years of civil loyalty to this city. In his near half-century of labors for the community he has occupied positions ranging from workman in the water department to a police judgeship.

"Pat's" service began when he was 19 years old as a "part-pay" man in the fire department. Later he became a "full-pay" man and in 1884 rose to be a lieutenant. His next job was a workman in the water department which he took on the advice of his physician that he was not outside enough.

Two years later he applied for a police badge and in 1896 Muskegon voters upheld his record as a sergeant by electing him to the bench.

Police Judge Murphy served in that capacity until 1914 when he returned to the police sergency.

While a fireman, Murphy, for a time, drove the famous team of "Billy and Jim," the horses which drew the first double horse-drawn ring used by the local fire department.

"Billy and Jim" not only were well-known fire horses but were noted for their tobacco habit. Each horse was given a chew upon his return from a fire, and at night, if they were to get loose, would nose through the uniforms of the firemen for more.

SWEEP TO DEATH BY PASSING TRAIN

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 29.—Swept under a Pennsylvania train at Emerton as he stood near the crossing watching it go by, Frances A. Middleton, 82, suffered the loss of both legs and one arm and died later.

The man's clothing caught on one of the cars and he was thrown beneath the wheels. Still living, he was rushed by ambulance 28 miles to Franklin hospital, where he died an hour after arrival.

"Mothers" U. S. Army

When Own Son Went Overseas In 1917, Mother Began Aiding Soldiers At Army Bases; Continued For 13 Years

Mrs. RACHEL FROHMAN DAVISON

By RUBY WEIL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—After 13 years, Mother Davison still is entertaining her "boys" still is mothering the United States Army.

Like many other mothers, Mrs. Rachel Frohman Davison turned her attention to mothering soldiers and sailors when her own son, Daniel Frohman Davison, went overseas in 1917. A sister of Charles Frohman, who went down with the Lusitania and Daniel, the other play-producing brother, Mrs. Davison found it natural to do her mothering by organizing entertainments for the training camps.

Unlike other mothers, she continued the work after the armistice. She's still at it—at the age of 67. Throughout the Second Corps area of the United States, and in the navy too, they call her Mother Davison, and eagerly await her visits.

Weekly Visits

Once a week she and her troupe go to Fort Jay on Governor's Island in New York harbor. First in the prison where she organized a band several years ago, then in the big hall named for her, Mother Davison puts her troupe through its program of songs, dances and monologues. She may be accompanied by a dozen or so from her list of several hundred volunteer artists often students, young musicians and dancers.

During the war Sothern and Marlowe and other stars gave their services. But now—

"My brother Daniel, offers to get stars for me," she said, "but I always tell him I'll just take my students and young artists. They have plenty of time—don't have to hurry off to performance. We just have a little home entertainment, and the boys love it."

The "boys" include everyone from the highest general to the lowliest private, as attested by Mother Davison's trunkful of mementoes. During the war Mrs. Davison was so efficient at her work that she knew when transport ships were sailing, and was there with her entertainers for a last performance and a last "good bye and good luck."

In addition to her entertainments at the army and navy bases and hospitals, Mrs. Davison finds time to cheer the poor and the ill outside the military service. Her energy unflagging, her cheerful voice giving directions, offering a merry "How are you" to her audiences, she goes from fort to hospital, from army prison to East Side Settlement house.

For all her stage associations, Mrs. Davison herself never has been on the professional stage.

"I married young," she explains. "But before I was married, after an amateur performance in which I took part, my future husband made me promise never to go on the stage."

Home Comes First

Until the war her life was devoted to her home and family. "I was always a home body," she explains. Even now, with all her outside activities, her home receives first attention. It is only a small apartment now; just Mrs. Davison and her husband, Dr. D. H. Davison and their son, Daniel live there. The other son and daughter are married; a second daughter died a few years ago.

But there are six grandchildren, so Mother Davison's apartment is a lively place. For that matter, any place where Mother Davison is would be likely to be lively: the woman who has mothered the United States army and navy for 13 years would make a lively place.

Says Smoking Does Not Cause Cancer

(International News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 29.—Smoking in itself does not cause cancer, but roughness or heat of a pipe or holder may do so.

This is stated by Sir George Newman, Chief Medical Officer of the Ministry of Health. His opinion is based on an exhaustive examination conducted by Dr. Janet Lane-Clayton.

Dr. Clayton's conclusions are that cancer of the skin and lip is readily curable, either by operation or radiation, especially if promptly diagnosed and treated; cancer of the tongue is less amenable to treatment.

"Results in these cases of treatment by radio-therapy," says Sir George Newman, "appear equal, if not superior to those obtained by operation, reaching 80 per cent of cures (on a three year basis) in the case of skin cancer."

"The habit of smoking has been widely regarded as a contributory factor in the production of cancer of the lip," writes Dr. Clayton. "But the percentage of smokers among the patients appears to be not higher than might be expected among the general population."

Old Church Building To Be Tiny Golf Course

Extensive Repairs Being Made To U. P. Edifice At Slippery Rock

(Special To The News)
SLIPPERY ROCK, Aug. 29.—The trustees of the United Presbyterian church of Slippery Rock, Clarence Reed, LeRoy Smith and J. A. Thompson are causing extensive repairs to be made on the church during the pastor's vacation. The repair work has been progressing for nearly thirty days and is now nearly completed.

The repair consists of new floor in the basement and the inside chimneys have been replaced by an out side flue. The building has been papered and painted throughout and new floor covering has been laid in the auditorium. Also a new piano will replace the present one. J. A. Thompson who has been over seeing the work is receiving many congratulations on the fine work being done.

Takes Shoes Off; Exposure Charged

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Jacob Rosenbaum's feet cost him exactly $2.50 each in an Evanston police court recently.

Rosenbaum, preparing to go for a swim, was undressing in his automobile. He had just removed his shoes and socks when Officer Edward Witt appeared on the scene.

"You are arrested for indecent exposure," said the officer. "You have publicly disrobed, contrary to the statutes."

The judge second Witt's witty deduction and fined Rosenbaum $5, declaring the obvious intention made him guilty.

York County Mother At 13 Can Disregard School Bell

YORK, Pa., Aug. 29.—Taking a practical course in motherhood and the care of her month old infant son, Mrs. Ralph Moody, 13 will not answer the school bells of Warrington township when they ring for the opening of the fall term next month.

The township school directors, after much cogitation, decided it would be manifestly impossible for the young mother to attend school, even though the school code of Pennsylvania requires that all children, between the ages of 6 and 16, must attend sessions regularly.

The code provides that unless this is done the parents or guardian of the child are liable to prosecution by the school board.

From among a number of reasons set forth in the code as valid excuses for a child's absence from school, the Warrington officials have selected one they believe covers Mrs. Moody's case. Motherhood is not named specifically among the reasons but there is a clause which says nonattendance at school may be excused "for other urgent reasons." Mrs. Moody's case, the directors agreed, is one of these.

Mrs. Moody probably the youngest mother, in Pennsylvania, was married last fall, when she was 12, by Justice of the Peace O. H. Barnes of Ross-ville, near here.

The ceremony was performed after Judge Henry C. Niles of York county issued a special order to Clerk of the Courts, Robert E. Glenn to grant a marriage license to the girl and Ralph

Ship Carries Full Cargo Of Silver Eels

(International News Service)
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 29.—Thirty barrels of silver eels formed the odd cargo of a boat that unloaded here recently to tranship the fish to New York. The eels came from the Little Hay harbor, Fisher's Island, on the tip end of Long Island. Legend says the eels acquire their hue by crawling across sand to reach the harbor for winter purposes.

Captain Blanche Now Keeps House Instead Of Boat

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 29.—Living the quiet, well ordered life of the average American housekeeper, content in her comfortable Tontit street home in New Orleans, is Mrs. Blanche Douglas Leathers, whose name is written in the history of the Mississippi river.

Not because her husband was Captain Boland Leathers, nor because her father-in-law was Commodore P. Leathers, who built and raced the first Natchez, in a record-breaking trip to St. Louis, against the Robert E. Lee, is Mrs. Leathers famous. She has lived a romantic life along the old river as the only woman pilot in its history.

For many years "Captain Blanche" piloted her craft, the Natchez, through the tricky channels of the great waterway. Guiding it carefully through the snag-infested waters, avoiding sand bars which held up similar craft, she played a big part in the distribution of cargo and passengers to the river towns.

Fifty-one years ago, while on a trip to see the Mardi Gras festivities, Blanche Douglas met the man she was to marry, Captain Leathers, the gallant son of a man widely known in the annals of river history, was piloting the Natchez, his own steamer. After a romantic courtship on her decks he claimed this shy daughter of a wealthy cotton planter as his wife.

The same steamer served as quarters for the honeymoon of the young couple. Later the vessel was to be her own and she its celebrated woman captain.

It was an interest in her husband's work and an inbred love for the great muddy stream which made a pilot of this grave, sincere girl. Gradually becoming acquainted with the business of mastering the steamer, she took over the duties of her husband. As he was required to be on land more, the responsibilities fell into the capable hands of his wife.

It was a gala day when she received her pilot's license and headed her boat up river on her first trip as captain. Ten tugs accompanied her out into the harbor and the river rang with salutes from all vessels in port.

The license under which she served for 20 years hangs on the wall of her living room. She has gathered around her the things which bring pleasant memories of the days when she carried important people up and down the river.

There are pictures of old river boats on her walls. The massive furniture in her bedroom was for many years in her quarters on the Natchez.

A cherished possession is a bottle of Madeira wine given her by Jefferson Davis. It bears this inscription, "Briarfield-Miss Blanche, I brought this to you. Don't open it until your first boy comes." The son never came to Blanche Leathers and the bottle remains intact.

Far different from the raven-haired, swash-buckling woman one expects to see, Mrs. Leathers sits quietly rocking, telling of the glamorous days along the river. Her soft voice tells many amusing incidents of the past, when piloting a river steamer was a man's size job. She remembers well the important people who shipped with her.

"They were great boats," she says.

Fish Plentiful On "Kona Coast"

(International News Service)

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 29.—The "Kona Coast" on the island of Hawaii, known to residents of the territory as one of the pleasantest and most picturesque vacation spots to be found anywhere in the islands, is now becoming world famous as a fishing resort. Letters of inquiry received by the Hawaii Tourist Bureau and the management of the Kona Inn, located at Kailua village in the heart of the Kona district, indicate that sportsmen in various parts of the world are interested in trying their skill with the big fish of this section.

Not only are fish abundant, but the location of these waters, lying as they do directly at the base of the 8,000-foot mountain, Hualala, with the 13,000-foot mountains Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa some distance further away cutting off the main force of the tradewinds, makes them almost as placid as a mountain lake. This is practically the only place in the islands where "still fishing" (allowing the boat to drift over the fishing grounds and using live fish for bait) can be successfully accomplished.

Swordfish are plentiful, though wary enough at all times to make the catching of one with regulation line and reel a considerable event. The Kona record for such tackle is 380 pounds and is held by Charles H. Finlayson, a Honolulu contractor. This catch was made in the summer of 1929. That swordfish grow larger in that section is evidenced by the fact that "Bob" Leslie, commercial fisherman, recently hooked one on his "tag line" weighing 800 pounds. Finlayson also landed a yellowfin tuna this summer weighing 175 pounds, holding the island record for fish of this variety until William P. Roth, president of the Matson Navigation Company, came down to the islands and pulled in a 198-pounder. Local sportsmen thought for a time that Roth's fish was a world beater, but a check-up of the records showed that Colonel Morehouse, a Catalina brought in a 251-pound yellowfin in 1898 using a 24-thread line.

U. S. Navy Zeppelin's New Motors Arrive

(International News Service)

AKRON, O., Aug. 29.—Spurred by the arrival of the Maybach motors for the giant U. S. Navy dirigible, "Akron," construction work on the new zeppelin has been speeded up. The ship is expected to be completed by May 1, 1931.

The motors, according to officials in charge of the construction of the ship, are a radical departure from those previously used on lighter-than-air craft. The propellers are so arranged that they can swing in a 90-degree arc to manipulate the ship up or down as well as straight ahead.

Conference May Determine Fate Of British Empire

By J. C. OESTREICHER
International News Service
Cable Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Great Britain's precarious status as the world's greatest empire, sadly weakened during the last year by dissatisfaction, revolts, open threats of secession and lack of economic co-operation between its component parts, will have a thorough airing within the next few weeks when the Imperial Conference assembles in London.

Many controversial subjects, some of them of far-reaching importance, are scheduled for discussion at the Conference, scheduled to meet early in September. It bids fair to be a momentous gathering, and upon the results of its deliberations Britain may stand or fall as a homogenous empire.

With unprecedented tides of Nationalism sweeping the far-flung domains of the British Empire during the past twelve months, a vast change has come over the nations and colonies dominated by the English crown. This change may be only temporary, and the "Empire" builders are hopeful that ere long the colonies will see the error of their ways, but the Conference itself will assemble at a time when much of Britain's "three-fifths of the world" is tottering on the brink of disassociation from the mother country.

Cable advices from London describes the arrival there of General Hertzog, Prime Minister of South Africa, the first delegate to make his appearance at the scene of the coming conference. He arrived, correspondents said, with "chips on each shoulder," prepared to broadcast South Africa's right to secede entirely from the Empire if such a course is found advisable, and a demand that Parliament and the Crown recognize this right.

From the Antipodes will come delegates from Australia and New Zealand, in anything but a cheerful mood, ready to demand establishment of a high protective tariff on non-Empire goods, in order that the products of the colonies may be assured of a permanent market in England and other parts of the Empire.

What Australia and New Zealand will do if these free trade demands are not heeded is a question. But General Hertzog has left no doubt so far as his country is concerned. He declared without hesitation upon his arrival in London that refusal of free trade by Great Britain would result in measures making it difficult.

If not downright impossible to market English products in South Africa.

General Hertzog's voice is expected to be heard the loudest when the conference discusses resolutions concerning the actual parliamentary and governmental status of each Dominion. Here General Hertzog will demand acknowledgment of the right of secession, although he adds acknowledgment is not really necessary, as such a right already exists and is therefore not open to debate.

Assembling of the conference will see the recent Free Trade movement in Britain reach its peak. The Empire Free Trade party, headed by the great publisher, Lord Beaverbrook, has made valuable political capital out of this issue, and the actual convocation of the conference will bring the proposal squarely before the people of England.

Thus far in advance, with Hertzog the only delegate as yet on the scene, it is difficult to say just how much sentiment the colonies have retained for the mother country. Since rumblings from far-off outposts of the Empire within the last few months have indicated a gradual breaking down of the hard-won homogeneity of Great Britain, and there are many who declare openly that the King and the Crown are the only factors left which continue to hold the various nations and colonies together in one great whole.

But it is a foregone conclusion that each colonial delegate will arrive fully prepared to put the individual interest of his own country before those of the motherland. Whether some workable scheme of co-operation can be found which will satisfy all the far-flung members of the Empire, and be pleasing to old England herself as well is at the moment a debatable question.

Past history has shown, however, that the mellowing influence of England has had a salutary effect upon blustering colonial delegates swarming into the capital with their Nationalistic demands and chauvinistic ideals. On more than one occasion, colonial leaders have sailed for England with fire in their hearts and departed with a handshake of camaraderie. But never before has Nationalistic feeling been quite so strong, or colonial flag-waving quite so hectic and intense. That England will have to cajole and soothe and give in to her truculent children is a virtual certainty. If she can pack them all to bed again, comforted and satisfied, her statesmen will have registered a genuine achievement in the cause of Empire solidarity.

Foreigners Study Nevada Farming

(International News Service)
RENO, Aug. 29.—Representatives of two foreign governments have conferred with Nevada agricultural authorities in gathering information on Nevada methods of farming with the idea of applying them in their own countries, according to University of Nevada agricultural agents.

The visitors were Evangelos N. Stephanov, agriculturist and engineer, and A. E. Zaitchik, district agricultural extension agent from Ukraine, Russia.

They were particularly interested in irrigation methods as immense reclamation projects are either underway or about to be undertaken in their countries.

Stephanov stated the land around Damascus has been under irrigation for 3000 years.

The Teachings Of Amos

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

I heard the voice of the Lord, saying Whom shall I send and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I: send me.—Isaiah 6:8.

By Dr. ALVIN E. BELL

Amos denied being either "a prophet or a prophet's son." He was a herdsman and dresser of fruit trees, a plain layman of the southern kingdom drafted by the Lord to preach judgment to the northern kingdom. It was the period of great prosperity in the days of King Jeroboam II, and as is usually the case prosperity bred irreverence rather than godliness.

The burden of Amos is national accountability for national sins. God will bring every nation into judgment for its attitude towards him and its treatment of humanity. Accordingly, he pronounces the judgment of God upon six surrounding gentile nations for the national sins that characterized them. Finally he dealt with greater severity with the sins of Judah and Israel, because they had sinned against greater privilege and clearer light than their gentile neighbors had possessed.

The keynote of his message is struck in 3:1-2. "Hear this word that the Lord hath spoken against you, O children of Israel, against the whole family which I brought up from the land of Egypt, saying, 'You only have I known of all the families of the earth; therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities.' Among these iniquities of Israel which he denounces are the injustice of the rich to the poor, 'Because they sold the righteous for silver, and the poor for a pair of shoes, 'making the ephah small and the shekel great,' also the animalism of its women whom he addresses as 'ye line of Bathan,' and chief of all the mockery of their pretense of worshipping God when their hearts were not right.

His bold challenge to the nation was, 'Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel.' To enforce his warning he pictured the coming destruction of the nation in five visions of judgment, namely, the locust plague and fire sweeping the nation; the plumb-line showing its crookedness; the basket of perishable fruit symbolizing its decay and the spiritual famine of God's withdrawal from the nation.

It is little wonder that such a plain preacher was invited to return to his own land and mind his own business. But the judgment Amos predicted came to pass within fifty years in the captivity and destruction of the northern kingdom of Israel.

The book closes with a promise to 'raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen and close up the breaches thereof; to raise up his ruins and build it in the days of old. In Acts 15:15-16 St. James cites this promise of Amos and claims its fulfillment in Jesus Christ and his Church made up of both gentiles and Jews.

Quoted from the author's book, "The Gist of the Bible Book by Book" with the permission of the publishers Richard R. Smith, Inc., New York. (The International Uniform lesson for August 31 is the Book of Amos, the subject being "Amos: A Herdsman Called of God to Be a Prophet." The Golden Text is Isaiah 6:8. Wet Roads, Bad Judgment Prove Poor Combination HARRISBURG, Aug. 29.—Throughout Pennsylvania attaches of the State Highway Patrol look for trouble when rain begins to fall. The combination of wet pavements and bad judgment on the part of drivers is deadly, according to Benjamin G. Eynon, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

"In wet weather," said Commissioner Eynon, "motorists become even more careless than usual strange as it may seem. Ajax defied the lightning, but it remained for thoughtless motorists to defy the result of the rainstorm."

"Even modern types of road surfaces are slippery in wet weather, but one would not think so judging from the manner in which the operators of cars and trucks drive over them at top speed. Tires of today are wonderfully non-skid and brakes very efficient, but nothing manufactured by man can successfully combat the law of momentum nor can the law of gravity be forever defied. Reports of accidents increase in astonishing degree after every rain storm. I suggest, therefore, that for their own safety, and for the protection of other street and highway users, motor vehicle drivers endeavor to be sensible in wet weather. Only once or twice in a hundred thousand cases is it necessary for a motor vehicle to travel faster than is safe under existing conditions. The average speed merchant has no excuses for high speed."

Woman Tried To Buy Famous Eiffel Tower

(International News Service)
PARIS, Aug. 29.—The Eiffel Tower is not for sale.

This announcement was made to Parisians a few days ago as the result of a recurrent rumor that a certain wealthy lady was trying to buy the famous Paris landmark.

The rumor says that the lady who is known for her extravagances, awoke from a troubled sleep one fine morning and made it known that she wanted to buy the tower immediately. Her household was baffled. The lady was accustomed to having her every whim satisfied but how to satisfy this one?

Her devoted friends set about to negotiate for her. But they did not know to whom they could make the offer. Who owned the tower? Did it belong to the State, the city, the ministry of public works or the ministry of war?

Eventually, they got in touch with the controlling authorities and a few days later, the lady received a letter informing her of the price of the landmark, that her offer had been received and under what conditions—if the negotiations were successful—the object in question could be wrapped up and delivered to her.

It was at this point that the whole transaction blew up. The lady in question, it was true, had put in an offer to buy the thing, but she was merely trying to fool somebody. And some clerk in a minister's office had gotten hold of her letter and sent her a formal reply, as if the Government really wished to sell the tower. Nevertheless, the rumor caused a great stir in the capital and several ministers wanted to start an investigation to punish the guilty persons.

The rumor did some good, however. It awoke Parisians to the fact that their beloved tower had already reached its 40th birthday and that they were very fond of it. And they really began to stare up at it and feel proud. Not that they could avoid seeing the tower if they tried. But Parisians grow so accustomed to their famous monuments and landmarks that it takes a good scandal to make them conscious of the fact that these things are right in their city.

So the famous tower—from whose austere heights some 5,000 American tourists every week gaze down on the panorama of Paris—has become increasingly popular.

Parisians go up there on fine days for in clear weather, you can see the spire of the Cathedral of Chartres, 60 miles away. And lovers go up there in the clouds to scratch their names on the topmost window or wall.

For an eccentric millionaire who wanted privacy and quiet and a magnificent view over the countryside, the tower would not be so bad a place. On every floor, there is hot and cold running water, gas and electricity, not to mention a good restaurant and a cafe. It would be not exaggeration to say that if the tower were for sale, it would be sold almost immediately.

There are a few artistic souls in this capital who think this masterpiece of engineering rather hideous. One of them, a rather famous person, says:

"The Eiffel tower sticks up like an ugly derrick over this lovely city. The only way I can escape it is to get inside it and look ahead. Then I'm deprived of its view."

But the rest of the Parisians love their tower and they will not sell it.

Lindbergh Hints Of Ending His Quests For Flying Marks

CURTIS REYNOLDS AIRPORT, CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who flew to the national air races with Mrs. Lindbergh Thursday, indicated that his days of flying to break records have ended.

Asked if he would attempt to regain the west-to-east transcontinental flight record recently wrested from him by Capt. Frank Hawks, Col. Lindbergh smiled, hesitated, then replied:

"I believe I am content to let Capt. Hawks' record stand. It was a brilliant flight he made and it probably will be a record for a long time."

"I've already congratulated Capt. Hawks," said Lindbergh, "but I'm eager to meet him and talk it over."

Lindbergh grinned broadly when asked about Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

"The baby's fine, thank you very much," he announced.

The Lindberghs plan to fly to Detroit this afternoon. They will stop at Detroit on business, then fly back to New York.

Col. Lindbergh referred to the accidental spilling of gasoline from a tank in his plane when he landed in Indianapolis en route to Chicago as a "mere incident" which endangered neither him nor his plane.

Grand Jury Is Rebuked By Judge

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 29.—Contending that the grand jury erred in dismissing the liquor charge against Andy Wargo, former Connelleville hotel proprietor, the court today decreed that the case should be resubmitted. The grand jury ignored three separate charges and ordered the costs placed on William T. Walker, assistant county detectives. The petition of District Attorney J. B. Adams contends that three witnesses presented positive testimony of liquor sales.

Another objection to poison liquor is that it so often kills the wrong men.

Hunger-Crazed Cat Attacks Two Women

Turns On Policeman But Is Killed With Night
Stick

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—A hunger-crazed cat went on a rampage in Coney Island and savagely attacked two women, a white poodle and even a policeman, who appeared upon the scene.

The women, Mrs. Lillian Halpern and Mrs. Becky Sacks, were walking down the street when the feline suddenly hurtled through space from nowhere in particular and bit Mrs. Halpern severely on the leg.

Leaping back with much hissing and clawing, the frenzied cat then attacked a small dog that had been standing watching the proceedings. From there the cat leaped onto the thoroughly alarmed Mrs. Sacks, who, along with Mrs. Halpern, was screaming for help and wildly trying to protect herself.

At this point Patrolman Mandel Schein entered the fray and gave chase to the cat, which proceeded to turn and attack its pursuer. He killed the animal with his nightstick.

Meningitis Cases Now Are Confined To Philadelphia

HARRISBURG, Aug. 29.—The recent spinal meningitis outbreak is limited to Philadelphia according to reports received by Dr. J. Moore Campbell, chief of the State Health Department's bureau of communicable diseases. No necessity for alarm or preventive measures appears to exist in other jurisdictions.

"While there has been a steady increase in spinal meningitis during the last three years there is no real cause for concern so far as the Commonwealth as a whole is considered at this time," Dr. Campbell said. "In 1927, 113 cases were reported, 69 of which got into the mortality tables; in 1928, 295 cases were noted with a death rate of 151; and in 1929 there were 516 cases; months of 1930 there have been 328 with 213 fatalities. For the first six cases which if maintained for the balance of the year will bring the total to 756. It is thus noted that there has been a consistent though comparatively small increase in this disease. However, when these figures are considered in relation to the total population in Pennsylvania the situation is not serious. Certainly at this time there is no necessity for any unusual concern regarding the malady outside the metropolitan limits of Philadelphia."

SHENANGO SCHOOLS START WEDNESDAY

September 3 To Be Opening
Date; Township Teachers
Meet Tuesday

Shenango township schools will open for the fall and winter term on Wednesday, September 3, instead of September 2 as was previously announced. A general meeting of the teachers will be held in the Shenango building Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, at which time all teachers of the townships will be given instructions for the year.

By action of the board of directors the Orville school has been closed and a new bus purchased to provide transportation for all pupils of that district to the consolidated school.

All students residing outside of the township and who have not attended Shenango high school before will report to the office Tuesday morning so that their schedules may be arranged. This will include the freshmen coming from the Shenango-Taylor joint school. All new students from outside the township must present their high school entrance certificate.

Supervising Principal Clare B. Book announced the following bus schedule would be in effect next Wednesday:

Leave at 8 a. m.—Brown's school, Sycamore street, Clifton Flats school, Westtown, Harmony Baptist church and the intersection of the Old Pittsburgh and Chewton roads. One bus will turn at the same point on the Snake Run road as it did last year. Leave at approximately 8:35 a. m.—Arch White's on the Frew Mill road, Carlson's on the Princeton road, Miller's garage, Energy garage, Wein-gartner's, McClean garage and Wilson avenue. Pupils residing back of Cascade park will walk to Palmer's store to meet the bus instead of going to Wilson avenue.

London Doctor Is Swimming Channel For New Record

(International News Service)

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 29.—With ideal conditions favoring his start, Dr. Brewster of London began his attempt to swim the English Channel at 6:30 a. m. today (1:30 a. m. Eastern Daylight Time).

He has hopes of capturing the Dover gold cup, coveted trophy offered to those who succeed in swimming the distance from Dover to France in record time.

Yesterday Miss Elsie West, British swimming star, abandoned her attempt to swim the channel after twelve hours in the water.

Trustees Arrested In Church Fight

Operation Saves Prize Cow's Life

HARRISMURG, Aug. 29.—Fears for the life of one of the State's prize workers resulted recently in a successful operation at the Selingsgrove State Colony for Epileptics where 1 of the best cows of the institution's dairy herd showed indication of decided decline. A veterinary surgeon was called and diagnosed the symptoms as pointing to foreign matter in the stomach. An operation was performed and in addition to nails and other pieces of metal a wire was found to have punctured the stomach wall. The cow is rapidly recovering and shows every promise of recovering entirely.

Credit Newspapers With Aiding Lower Traffic Fatalities

No Material Increase In Traffic Deaths Shown In Two Months Time

Editorials In Papers Help To Educate Public As To Reckless Driving

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Newspapers of the United States were Thursday given credit by the National conference on street and highway safety for playing a material part in turning the automobile fatality line downward.

The automobile death rate for 1930 has not increased since the middle of June and has shown a downward swing since the middle of July. From February to June there was an almost continuous climb in the number of automobile fatalities each month, with each succeeding thirty days higher than the preceding period.

However, for the month ending August 9 the census bureau announced that the number of deaths from automobile accidents in 78 large cities was lower than during the corresponding period of the previous year for the first time since last December.

While no cause for the decrease is assigned by the division of vital statistics, it is reasonable to believe that active efforts of the newspapers of the country in urging safety, and seeking to combat the increasing number of deaths on the streets and roads, have played a material part in turning the automobile fatality list downward, declared Col. A. B. Barber, director of the conference.

Editorials Help Barber pointed out that need for uniform vehicle legislation in the different states, which was brought out by the third national conference on street and highway safety, with emphasis on the enactment of drivers' license laws and the prevention of reckless and dangerous driving, has been stressed by the newspapers in recent editorials.

Hundreds of editorials have appeared on the startling aspect of the accident and fatality of 1929, with the increase for the first six months of this year, and discussing the proposals and recommendations of the third national conference.

Attention has been given especially to the toll of lives at grade crossings, and to the increasing benefits of safety education among children in the schools.

The toll of accidents and fatalities for the last year, as revealed in the report of traffic accident statistics of the national conference, has aroused editorial demands in every state and in Canada for a curb on reckless and careless driving, and for control by law of the privilege of operating motor vehicles on streets and highways.

Surplus Peach Crop Will Be Utilized In Charity Work

To Be Made Into Peach Butter
And Sold At Cost To Charitable Agencies

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—Thousands of tons of peaches, from the enormous surplus crop that would otherwise rot in the California orchards, will be canned within the next few weeks and distributed at cost to charitable agencies throughout the United States. This is the conservation and relief plan of the newly organized Economic Conservation Committee of America with headquarters in San Francisco.

Countless thousands of needy and under-nourished men, women, and children will get the real value from this food crop which has no market-value this year due to the tremendous tonnage of the peach crop.

Francis I. Jones, Director General of the U. S. Employment Service, during his recent tour of the west, met with the committee of local business men and charity workers and helped outline the program.

Doctor John H. Irish of the University of California will have general supervision of the canning. The Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust Company of San Francisco will handle collections and disbursements of committee funds.

The plan calls for preparing the fruit as peach butter, cooked down under vacuum; packing in plain gallon cans; and shipping direct to orphanages, asylums, welfare groups, churches, civic bodies, and all like charity institutions and relief organizations.

Only the most nominal overhead is being allowed for preparation, packing, and distribution. All usual marketing profits are eliminated. The produce will be sold at cost. So that this charity merchandising will not interfere with the commercial market trade, all buyers agree in writing when ordering that none of this peach butter will be resold for profit or used save for charity distribution.

Although the plan has just been launched, the response has been nationwide. Humanitarian groups and individuals, including Federal and State officials, have wired their endorsement of the work. And according to J. B. McCleskey, Executive Director of the committee, the spirit of cooperation already shown assures the success of this practical conservation and relief work as a permanent Economic Plan for turning all surplus food crops to charitable use.

B. P. W. Clubs Will Have Story Contest For Women

Individual Stories Of Achievements Of Women In Business World To Be Given

In order to enlarge records which ultimately will have historical value, the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is announcing a nation-wide contest for women for the best stories of the achievements of business and professional women submitted within the next two months. Word of the competition which is being held in cooperation with the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries, of which Mrs. Oliver Harriman is chairman, has been sent to the 1,200 clubs comprising the federation.

According to Miss Emily Kneubuhl, executive secretary of the National Federation, the purpose of the competition is to add to the large fund of material on the progress of women in the business world already assembled by the Federation as women's organization.

The finest individual story of the achievement of a business woman submitted by October 1 will win the first prize of $50. The next best story will be given honorable recognition and a prize of $25. Records of odd and unusual occupations followed by women, stories of women who have built up business for themselves, who have attained high executive positions against heavy odds, or who have scored distinctive success in a field unfamiliar to women, these are the stories wanted.

"Increasingly," Miss Kneubuhl stated, "newspaper and magazine writers are coming to the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs for information as to women who are scoring unusual successes. Much valuable material is already in our files, but we are certain that there are thousands of human interest stories about business women living unrecorded in hundreds of cities and towns throughout the country. It is this valuable material that we seek. As an organization we cannot inform too thoroughly ourselves about the histories of women and we welcome this opportunity to join with the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries in this attempt to gather information about women's accomplishments."

A group of prominent New York women who are vice chairmen of the exposition have been asked to serve on the committee of judges. These vice chairmen are: Mrs. Sidney Borg, Miss Mary E. Dillon, Mrs. Walter S. Comly, Mrs. William H. Good, Mrs. B. Hunting Howell, Mrs. Winthrop McKim, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, and Mrs. Nettie R. Shuler. Judging of the manuscripts will be 50 per cent on their own merits and 50 per cent on the brilliance of the achievements they record.

The contest is open to any woman in the United States whether or not she is a member of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club. The contestants may write of their own business success, or may tell of the enterprise of some other woman.

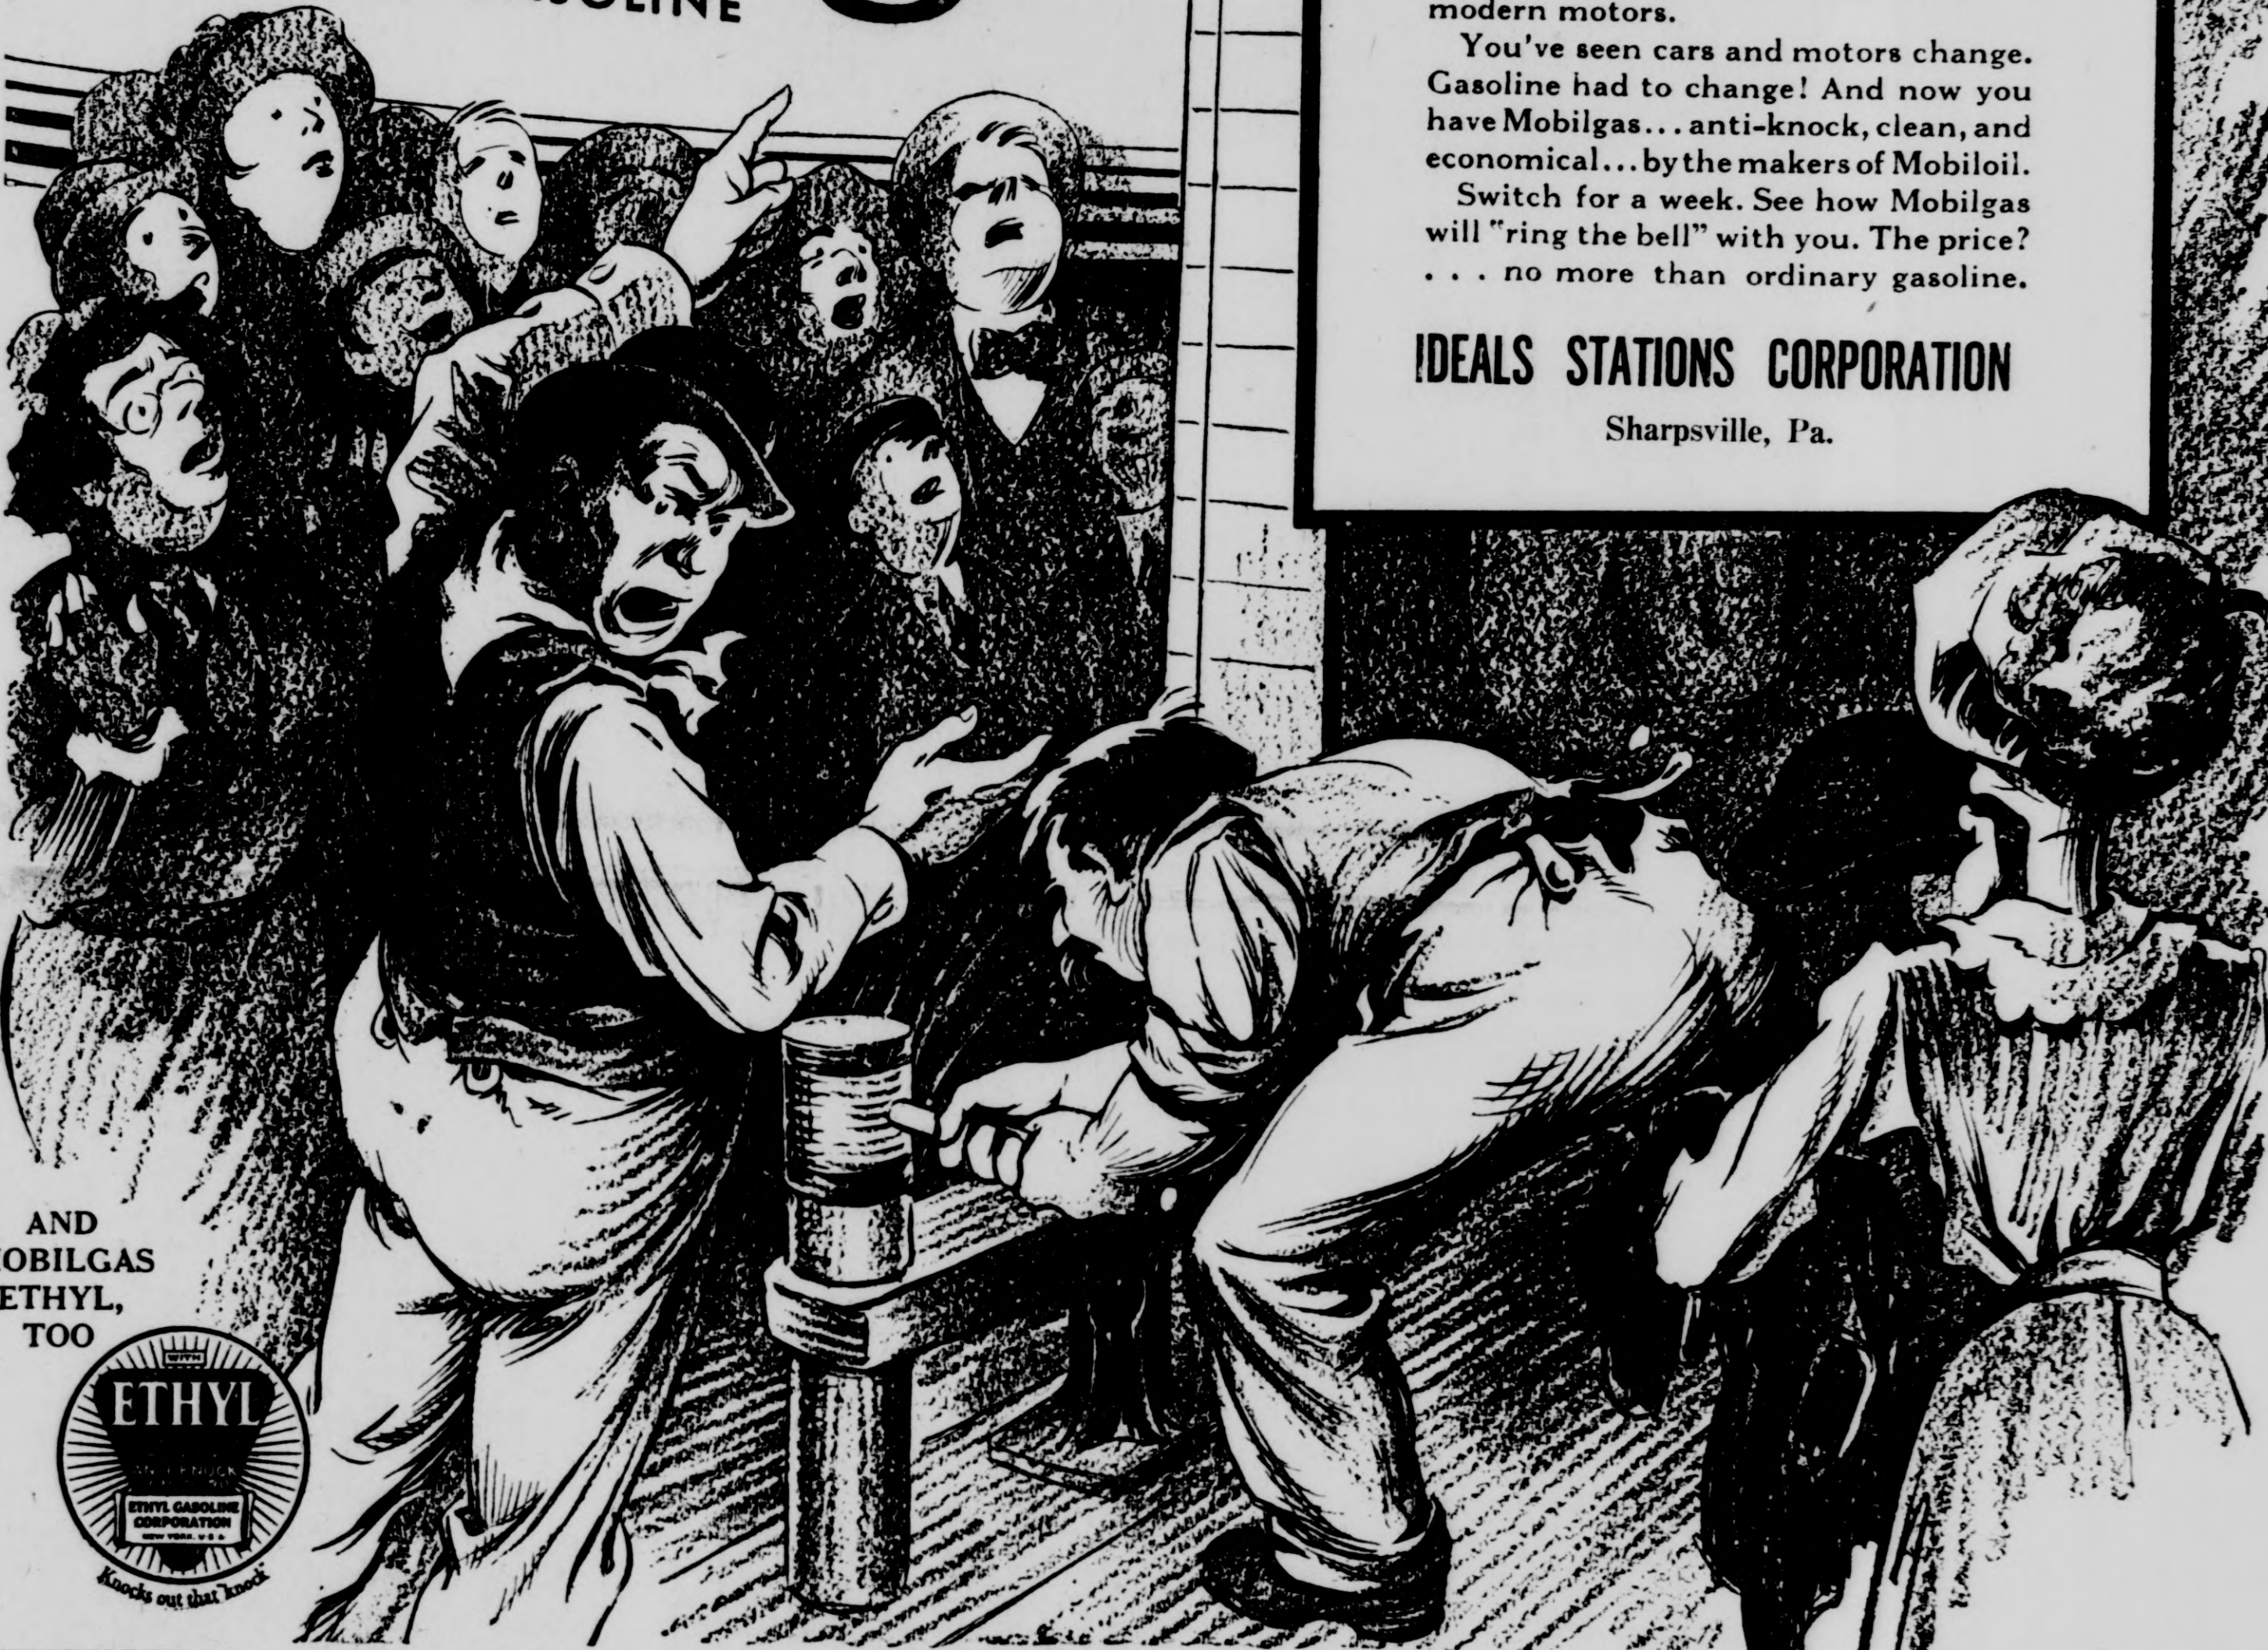

Manuscripts must not exceed 1,000 words in length. To be accepted, manuscripts must reach the office of the Federation, 1819 Broadway, New York city, by midnight on the evening of September 31. Entries must be addressed to the Women's Achievement contest. Two copies of each manuscript must be submitted.

Miss Nancy Bechtol, president of the New Castle club, announces that this matter will be taken up at the first regular meeting of the club September 8 and it is thought there will be several contestants from the New Castle district.

You know, of course, the distinction between evening gowns and night gowns? You can't see so much at night.

Mobilgas

It RINGS the BELL

WHEN something new and better appears, it always "rings the bell" with the public. That's what happened in the case of the newest gasoline—Mobilgas. Not just another gasoline, but a better gasoline—modernized by Vacuum's process of distillation for the new and different fuel requirements of modern motors.

You've seen cars and motors change. Gasoline had to change! And now you have Mobilgas... anti-knock, clean, and economical... by the makers of Mobiloil.

Switch for a week. See how Mobilgas will "ring the bell" with you. The price? ... no more than ordinary gasoline.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—For every single likker cache unearthed by the Volstead Vigilantes in New York, 25 come as a result of confidential information phoned, wired or written, some of it the result of conscientious snipers, much of it spite work. An average of 100 tips a day from Volunteer Snipers and secret mingers find their way into Pro-Hi headquarters. And no tip is too meagre or nonsensical to be disregarded.

A WOMAN'S WORLD

It doesn't take much to start an argument these days, does it? Jimmy Gerard compiles a list of 64 men who "rule America" and immediately lay out the works.

Jimmy's list may or may not be accurate. But what difference who the men are, or how many, who "rule"?

It's not the men who "rule America," but the women who "govern it," that really counts.

Men are clever. Women are wise. Cleverness "rules." Wisdom "governs."

Men stalk around, stick out their chests and talk big; but when all is said and done, it's a woman's world.

As the philosopher has pointed out: "When men wish to be safely impressive, as judges, priests or kings, they wear skirts—the long, trailing robes of female dignity. The whole world is under petticoat government, for even men wear petticoats when they wish to govern."

ERUDITE PENMAN

Ben De Casseres sent me a signed copy of his monograph, "The Supermen in America."

I'd like to quote the entire message he wrote on the fly leaf, but it's one of those messages that "lissens" bet-ready has chalked up a terrible toll of life and limb.

The builders do everything possible to protect the workers—except the one thing that really would protect them—curtailing the speed of construction.

Ten carpenters and 30 laborers are kept busy day after day erecting safety devices in the forest of steel; but the emergency hospital established on the premises when the work was begun has more than justified its existence. The doctor and two nurses employed there never have a spare moment.

For every floor completed, a worker has sacrificed his life. The record to date is approximately 40 killed and 400 injured.

A magazine writer assigned to "cover" the story found all sources of authoritative information barred. He could learn nothing from those in charge of construction and at the department of labor and the compensation bureau the same disheartening reticence was in effect.

A politician, nationally prominent, is interested in the building in question.

Of course, that has nothing to do with the story. As the feller says: "I just put that in to make it more complicated."

Says Wife's Nagging Made Him Nervous

(International News Service)

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Aug. 29.—Walter Weitzel was a lineman for a telephone company here.

But the "ding donging" of his estranged wife, Ida, made him "so nervous he couldn't climb a pole," according to Walter.

So he left his wife, first for a separate residence here; later for parts unknown.

"Her nagging drove me to it," Weitzel told Judge W. R. Davison.

The judge ordered Weitzel to pay his wife $5 a week and enter bond on $300. Weitzel was informed by the county prosecutor he must support his wife or go to jail.

"How long would I have to stay in prison if I don't pay her," Weitzel wanted to know.

"Three months," the district attorney replied.

"Me for jail," vowed Weitzel. "And you can start that sentence any time you want."

Irish Free State Takes Measures To Bar Jack Diamond

Believe Jack "Legs" Diamond Is Aboard Liner Baltic Bound For Ireland

SHIP CAPTAIN
SCOURS VESSEL

(International News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 29.—The Irish Free State ministry, announcing it has "definitely learned" that the notorious New York underworld character Jack "Legs" Diamond is aboard the White Star liner Baltic, issued orders to the Queenstown alien officer today to refuse the gangster permission to land.

Port authorities were further instructed to place a ban on all companions of Diamond, whose heretofore coming to Europe has caused intense excitement here.

The ministry failed to offer further explanation on the source of its information and by what means the gangster will be identified on arrival of the Baltic in port. The captain of the vessel already has notified authorities that despite a thorough search, he has been unable to locate Diamond on the vessel.

Liner Searched.
It was believed, however, that new developments in the quiet scrutiny of persons aboard the ocean liner brought new messages to the Irish Free State ministry which have not been given out.

Dispatches from Dublin indicated that Free State officials believe Diamond aboard the Baltic under the disguise of a millionaire tourist with a shipshape passport in his possession. They said he would be arrested on discovery and returned to New York at once.

The London Daily Herald meanwhile received another radio message from the commander of the Baltic stating that a thorough search of the vessel failed to reveal the gangster.

"We made a thorough search of all parts of the ship, including the bunkers and holds, but Diamond was not found," the message read.

CHILDREN ARE INTERESTED IN BOOKS OF TRAVEL

Fifteen Seventh Ward Youngsters Striving To Obtain "Passports"

Because of a unique plan sponsored by the New Castle free public library in the main building and branch libraries, the juvenile borrowers from the Mahoningtown branch library have taken an added interest in travel books.

During the past several months the children have been reading travel books so that they might obtain a "passport" containing the names of ten books that they have read. Their own name, address and name appears on the outside cover of the booklet. The attractive looking "passports" were prepared by Miss Alice Joyce, children's librarian, and quite a number have been given out. Needless to say, the youthful readers feel quite proud at attaining one of the "passports."

So far, two have been given to Seventh Ward children. Fifteen juvenile readers are trying for the passports.

GIRL RUNS INTO SIDE OF AUTO

A Number Of Accidents Are Reported To The Police In Past 24 Hours

R. E. Johnson, 840 Almira avenue, reported to the police that he was enroute west on Seloto street Thursday afternoon, when a girl named Catherine English, ran out into the street and into the side of his car. He took her to the New Castle hospital, where it was found that she had not been injured.

Clyde Jackson, 26 Round street, reported today that he was enroute east on East Washington street at Court, when his machine was in a collision with a car bearing Pennsylvania license No. 1375-M, which according to Mr. Jackson was attempting to pass another machine and struck his car. The other car belonging to Monroe O. Smith R. D. No. 1, in turn hit the machine of Clyde Raney of English avenue. Smith in his report contended that Jackson was in the center of the street instead of his right hand side of the street and that this caused the accident. All three machines were injured.

Frank Carman of 2205 Highland avenue reported today that he was enroute south on Highland avenue and that the truck of Dewey Ripman of 223 East Clayton street, was following to his rear. Suddenly a rear wheel of the truck came off and kept on rolling and hit and damaged a rear fender of the Carman car.

Fred H. Kay, Jr., of 229 Hazelcroft avenue, reported that he was headed west on Adams street at Washington street, when a woman driving a car bearing Pennsylvania license VA746 going west on Washington street turned into Adams street and ran into and damaged the Kay car.

There will be special music and Mrs. J. A. Weller will have a talk on "Is it possible to save our own flower and vegetable seeds?" A program of stunts and social period will follow the program.

Smoking Furnace Cause Of Alarm

Assistant Fire Chief H. Clare Stockman and Fireman Frank Robinson were called to the Gunning Building at 9-11 West Washington St. at 7:25 last evening, when residents in the building noticed smoke filling the place.

An investigation showed that someone had built a fire in the furnace in the cellar, the chimney of which was stopped up, allowing the smoke to pour out into the cellar. They extinguished the fire in the furnace.

South Siders Have Meeting

Board Of Trade In Session At Huston Store On Thursday Night

MAKING PLANS FOR EFFORTS OF FALL

Some 15 members attended the business meeting of the South Side Board of Trade which was held on Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the store room of the Huston Hardware store on East Long avenue, according to Alec Samuels, president of that organization.

One of the most important things discussed at the session was the staging of a South Side Bargain Day. W. C. Drushel was appointed chairman to select a committee whose work it will be to arrange for the date of the sale event and other things necessary to put on a sale of this kind.

A motion was made and passed to pay $15 for the cleaning of the South Side swimming hole located on Big Run Creek.

One of the features of the meeting was the talk given by Alderman Richard R. Lewis of South Mill street. Alderman Lewis spoke to the members on the subject of "Credit."

Another meeting for the purpose of making final arrangements for the bargain day will be called soon.

Those who attended the meeting follow: Abe Fisher, Alderman R. R. Lewis, William Cohen, Alex Samuels, Hartzell Huston, John Foster, Dave Seamon, D. C. Davies, Maurice Markley, W. C. Drushel, C. C. Clause, Arce Cohen, and Edward Masters. Secretary Hartzell Huston read the minutes of the last meeting.

Public School Buildings Are In Excellent Shape For Opening Of Term

All Buildings In City Have Been Thoroughly Renovated And Repaired During Summer Vacation—Building Superintendent Tells Of Work Done.

Like the tiny fairies who worked unseen, gangs of workmen have been redecorating and refurbishing the schools and buildings of New Castle's school system, while the occupants during the school season have been away.

When school bells welcome back 11,000 students to 17 school buildings on September 8, a complete transformation will be noticed. Shiny, polished surfaces will replace defacing fingermarks on walls, desks which have been scratched mercilessly by the youngsters will be thoroughly varnished, and shabby furniture will be either replaced or repaired.

A trip to the school buildings with S. G. Ligo, superintendent of school buildings, grounds and equipment disclosed workmen hurriedly finishing last minute repairs to make structures habitable at the opening of the school season.

Since schools closed for the summer vacation 38 workmen have busied themselves with repairs directed by Ligo. This year, according to the superintendent, the biggest part of repairs was started on elementary school buildings, of which there are 14. Nevertheless, the two junior high schools and one senior high received a completed cleaning and other work.

Expend $30,000. Approximately $30,000 has been spent on building maintenance since the schools closed. Another $5,000 is expected to be spent by the end of the school year, July 1, 1931.

Five hundred gallons of paint, 150 gallons of varnish and other materials were used to renovate the buildings. In every school general repairs have been necessary. These include repairs to the woodwork, lighting systems, caulking of the stone or brickwork, repairs to the iron work and other parts of the schools.

Superintendent Ligo points with pride to his department's latest problem, which has been successfully completed—elimination of smoke from school buildings. In the past residents near schools have complained in some instances, of smoke originating from school heating plants. In two years, the department's elimination of the nuisance, has been remarkable. Seven smokestacks on different buildings were raised at a cost of $2,500. The smokestack of the Senior high school was alone raised 25 feet, and according to Ligo, smoke in the vicinity of that school has decreased 75 per cent.

Last year a new stoker outfit was placed in operation in the North street school, resulting in the elimination of nearly all smoke. According to Ligo, in five years, from a standpoint of efficiency resulting in the rebuilding of the smokestacks, and new stoker, the savings on coal will pay for the expense of the repairs.

Work Accomplished. Extent of repairs to the school buildings are summarized as follows by Superintendent Ligo:

Franklin Junior high, Cunningham avenue, $5,000. General upkeep repairs, heating plant repairs, painting. George Washington Junior high, Euclid avenue, $1,000. Approximately 1,200 desks varnished, walls cleaned, general repairs.

Senior high school, Lincoln avenue, $1,500, general repairs.

West Side school, West Washington street, $3,000. Exterior painting, repairs to woodwork, ironwork and brick.

Highland school, Highland avenue, $2,500. Extensive exterior, repairs, sidewalk repaving, caulking, weather-strip to windows, and minor repairs.

Lincoln-Garfield school, East Long avenue, $2,500. Extensive repairs in both buildings. Garfield interior painted and new lighting system installed. General repairs in Lincoln building.

Terrace Avenue school, Terrace avenue, $400. Repairs to tower damaged by storm last spring. Damage was covered by insurance.

Croton school, Croton avenue, $800. General repairs and caulking.

Oak school, Oak street, $300. Extensive painting and caulking.

Rose school, Rose avenue, $800. Painting, repairing and caulking.

Thaddeus Stevens school, East Washington street, $600. Exterior painting, general repairs and caulking.

Lawrence school, Liberty and Mahoning, $250. Repainting four rooms and minor repairs.

Mahoning school, Cedar and Madison, $450. Portable buildings painted and repaired.

Arthur McGill school, Albert and Norwood, $400. Minor repairs to furniture.

Poillon school, East Home street, $1,400. Interior painted and repairs to heating plant.

Aiken school, Pearson street, $250. General repairs.

North school, North street, $150. General repairs.

Administration building, East street, $150. Painting.

Annual Pilgrimage To Tiffin, O., Orphans' Home Will Be Made Saturday

Simultaneous with announcement of final preparations by about 40 members of Castle Council, No. 365, Junior Order of United American Mechanics of New Castle to attend the annual pilgrimage to the association's orphan home in Tiffin, O., over the week-end, it is announced that state and national officers of the J. O. U. A. M., will arrive in this city to attend the celebration of the 400th meeting of the local council on September 25.

Thirty members from Sharon Council, No. 20 from Greenville Council and about six from Butler will arrive here Saturday evening to join with Castle Council in the pilgrimage to Tiffin. It is expected that over 100 will leave from here. The pilgrimage is held annually by delegates of councils from all parts of the country. The orphans' home at Tiffin, one of the homes maintained by the J. O. U. A. M., cares for 1,030 children.

The celebration called on the 400th meeting will be held in McGowan hall and be attended by dignitaries of the order from the state and nation. Already it has been ascertained that Val D. Martin of Philadelphia, State Councilor of the organization in Pennsylvania, will attend.

Claud Wagner will be a delegate from Castle Council at the annual state convention of the J. O. U. A. M., which will be held in Altoona, September 8-10.

Clarence McConnell is the councilor of Castle Council, No. 365.

Credit Bureau Managers To Meet

Ray F. Hall, manager of the New Castle Credit Exchange has received an invitation to attend a state meeting of managers of Credit Bureaus of the state of Pennsylvania, which will be held in Meadville, September 15 and 16.

Prominent speakers will address the meeting and matters pertaining to their business will be discussed during the two day meeting. Several hundred are expected present.

Norway Orders Sealing Vessel To Hasten Home

Sealing Ship Bearing Bodies Of Andree And Companions Ordered Home

(International News Service)
COPENHAGEN, Aug. 29.—Treachery storms that sweep unexpectedly over the Arctic seas with disaster to shipping have impelled the Norwegian government to broadcast requests to the sealing vessel Bratvaag to hasten to port as soon as possible. The Bratvaag at present is home-bound with the three bodies of the Andree balloon expedition received 33 years after the venture brought death to its participants in the polar wastes. An impatient world is anxiously awaiting disclosure of the contents of the diary in whose pages Andree related the adventures of himself and his companions after their departure from Spitzbergen.

Government officials, fearing the sealing vessel might be engulfed in a storm if it tarried too long on the seas, therefore have urged its immediate return to port.

Three battleships will be scrapped at once to provide work for idle men. Why can't cities tear up all their streets at once while jobs are scarce?

Gather Here Today In Safety Session

Safety and safety first measures were discussed by men of the E. and

A. division of the Pennsylvania railroad at their regular divisional safety meeting Thursday afternoon in the assembly room of the west side freight house.

E. A. Fenton, supervising agent for the division presided in the absence of Superintendent H. T. Frushour.

ZONING AREA IS INCREASED
All the states except two now have laws permitting municipalities to control the use, height, and area of buildings by districts or zones.

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

SAVE MATURE CORN
Drought conditions prevalent in Pennsylvania and neighboring states will reduce the corn crop and may cause a shortage of seed next spring. It seems advisable for farmers of Lawrence county to save all of the 1929 corn crop which has been well taken care of, for seed purposes. Corn must be of proper maturity should germinate all right next spring.

Farmers who do not have old corn from which to pick seed for the 1931 crop are urged to select the best ears in the field. A small ear with matured grains, even though not filled out and perhaps slightly shriveled, will make good seed, provided it is stored properly and thoroughly dried before freezing weather begins this fall. The resulting crop from such seed will be just as good as that from more perfect and well-developed ears in a good year.

With few exceptions, every farmer in the state can gather sufficient seed for his own use from the better spots in the field. Many farmers have good corn adapted to their particular conditions, and they should not sacrifice this for a new corn which may come from a distance and will not be suitable for the new use.

Furthermore, it is doubtful if seed corn can be obtained from other states since many of the corn growing sections have been hit harder by the drought than has Pennsylvania. The most feeding value from this year's corn crop can be secured by putting the corn in the silo.

EVERGREEN CUTTINGS
Taking cuttings of evergreens during the latter part of July and during the month of August is a common practice among amateurs.

A more successful time for this operation is from the latter part of October to the middle of December. A small greenhouse or a hothouse will be necessary for the latter method. The cuttings of evergreens should be not less than four inches nor more than six to eight inches long. A sharp knife or a pair of pruning shears is absolutely essential in order to obtain a clean cut. The cuttings should be placed in flats 16 by 20 by 4 inches, with sufficient drainage allowed.

Broken pots or stones, placed over the holes, will prevent the sand used in the propagation from leaching out. The cuttings are placed in rows far enough apart so that they will not touch each other. Placing the cuttings one-sixth to one-quarter of their depth in the sand has proved successful. New tissue will cover the base of the cutting in three or four weeks after setting in the sand. When the cuttings have become thoroughly rooted they should be shaded carefully for about three weeks, after which they may be placed in rows 10 to 12 inches apart and four to six inches between plants.

LATE FALL GARDEN
A few vegetables may still be planted in the home garden for use late this fall. A maximum supply of late maturing vegetables may be harvested only by thorough soil preparation, the use of good seed and immediate planting.

Late maturing vegetables, already planted, such as cabbage, celery, carrots and beets, should be given every chance to mature. Weeds should be eliminated from competition by cutting them off or pulling so as not to interfere with the roots of the crops. One or two light applications of nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia or chicken manure distributed along the row about six inches from the plants will hasten the growth of these vegetables.

Leaf lettuce will grow to edible size in a few weeks. Grand Rapids is a good variety for the fall. Spinach grows well in the fall and will stand considerable cold weather. The Long Standing Bloomsdale, Virginia Savoy and King of Denmark are varieties which may be planted at this time.

Endive, grown now, will not form mature heads but will have time to produce leaves of edible size. The Dwarf Scotch Kale is a fall vegetable and will stand frost. Kohi rabi, usually produces small bulbs in a month and a half from the time of planting. The Purple Top Globe turnip will mature in about two months and will stand light frosts.

Carrots and beets start rather slowly and only small roots may be expected if these vegetables are planted now. Several small vegetables, such as lettuce, spinach, radishes, turnips, beets and carrots may be grown to full maturity late in the fall under a glass-covered cold frame. Even a muslin-covered coldframe will give considerable protection from frost and will be less expensive than glass.

POTATO FIELD TOUR
A tour of interest and benefit to Lawrence county farmers has been arranged for Friday, August 29. The county growers will meet at the farm of C. B. Patton, Harlansburg road, at 9:30 a. m., eastern standard time, to start on a potato inspection tour of several well known farms.

The group will go from the Patton farm to the A. E. McCreary and son farm north of East Brook. They will have a basket lunch there after inspecting the crop and will then motor to Mercer county to the farms of the McDowell and Robinson brothers a short distance from the city of Mercer.

N. Schmitz of the department of crops and soils, State college, will accompany the farmers on the trip.

COMPLYING WITH NEW MILK LAW

Dairymen, Producers, Retailers Make Changes To Meet Law

Dairymen, producers and retailers of milk in Lawrence county, and in fact, every county in the state are building, remodeling and repairing barns, milk houses and equipment to comply with the new milk law which becomes effective September 1.

Many retailers of raw milk have been forced to build new milk houses and install sterilizing equipment. All producers of milk are required by the new law to have their barns or stables light, airy and in a reasonably sanitary condition.

After September 1 retailers are required to procure permits to sell milk. In towns and cities where the sale and handling of milk is governed by an ordinance the permits are procured from the town board of health or town council. Where no milk ordinances are in force permits must be secured from the state bureau of milk control.

In order to procure a permit a retailer must have his plant inspected by an authorized inspector who reports it to the bureau. If he buys raw milk from farmers and bottles it the barns and milk houses of the farmers must be approved by an inspector.

Milk bottles, cans, strainers and other utensils must be sterilized every time they are used by being subjected to steam or boiling water for five minutes. This requirement of the new law has forced many milk dealers and producers throughout Lawrence county to install new equipment and erect new buildings.

MUCH PULP WOOD IN THE SOUTH

A great potential source of pulpwood for paper manufacture in this country is the pine belt of the South, as southern pine grows seven to ten times faster than red spruce, now generally used for paper manufacture.

The battle for Congressional seats is to be fought largely by radio, embellished, perhaps, of the fact that both parties are fairly well up in the air.—The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Labor Day At Cascade Park

Plans Are Made For Gala Celebration At New Castle's Big Park

PARK TO BE OPEN ALL COMING WEEK

The outing season of 1930 will reach its climax at Cascade Park, New Castle, on Labor Day when thousands of holiday-makers will throng the spacious center to mark the last big summer holiday. Cascade will be open and in full operation throughout Labor Day week.

The holiday will be celebrated in fitting fashion, park management and the New Castle Trades and Labor Assembly joining to provide special features of outstanding merit and attractiveness. Dancing in beautiful Rainbow Terrace tops the list of the day's big features. Music for the dancing, which will start at noon and continue through until midnight, will be furnished by Cliff Perrine and his orchestra. These boys were great favorites with park patrons last season and are back at the park with a larger bag of tricks than ever.

Baseball games are scheduled for both morning and afternoon and in the afternoon a program of sports for men, women and children will be staged under the auspices of the New Castle Trades and Labor Assembly. This will prove a gala event for picnickers from all sections.

A feature of the evening will be one for which Cascade is noted, a display of fireworks on an elaborate scale such as seldom is to be seen as a free feature. This is an annual event at Cascade and the program arranged this year by Carl Shaner, Park manager, surpasses previous efforts.

Along the big midway will be found many worthwhile amusements and features. One of the finest of the new amusements is the Tom Thumb golf course, a game that is thrilling, amusing and liked by young and old. It has proved especially attractive to holiday crowds and picnickers.

The "park-within-the park" the kiddies own playground, comprising a kiddies midway with miniature rides galore, is another feature that makes Cascade particularly satisfactory for the family parties.

Boats, canoes and power launch will be found on Crystal Lake for those who delight in spending their time on the water. Another ideal arrangement for the broadcasting every afternoon and evening of music to all parts of Cascade. Bathing, boating parties, picnickers in the groves, strollers along the midway, all hear the latest and best of concert and jazz music.

Ample parking space, spacious picnic groves and pavilions with free electric and gas cooking facilities complete the array of facilities that make Cascade so popular in this section.

Telephone Calls Heaviest At 10 A. M.

(International News Service) BOSTON, Aug. 29.—There are three periods of the day when the telephone is used to a greater extent than at any other time.

The first traffic peak comes about ten o'clock in the morning then again at 4 in the afternoon, with the third high mark at 7 o'clock in the evening according to survey made by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. It was stated that the last one is perhaps the busiest, for at that time of the day people are busy making engagements and also completing plans for the following day.

Some of the uses of the telephone arise out of public holidays and may be forecast and provided for. Others come suddenly, at any time of the day or night, caused by local conditions, such as a sudden shower which result in changes of plans.

Temporary delay of train service may cause a similar jump in the volume of telephone traffic though the peaks due to these causes are of short duration.

Will Celebrate Opening Of Perry Highway October 1

Governor Fisher And Other High State Officials Expected At Mercer

Special To The News. MERCER, Pa. Aug. 29.—Thirteen years of persistent effort will be rewarded when the opening of highway between here and Pittsburgh is celebrated here, probably on October 1st when Governor John S. Fisher, highway commissioner, J. Lyle Stewart, chief engineer, Sam Eckles, secretary of agriculture, Dr. Chas. Jordan, head of the state printing bureau, John S. Dight, are coming.

Frank Filer who is chairman of the Perry Highway committee and stayed on the job until his plans were realized will have as many of the committee members as possible present. Dinner, speech-making and parade are planned. From Zelinople, Portersville, Butler, Pittsburgh to the south; from Meadville, Cambridge Springs, Erie to the north, representatives all along this 140 mile ribbon of concrete will assemble here. The definite date will be set at a meeting of September 2nd. The Old Home Week organization will assist Mr. Filer in preparing his program.

332ND REUNION OPENS SATURDAY

Members of the 332nd Infantry, Headquarters Company of which was composed almost entirely of New Castle boys, will open their annual reunion at Springfield, Ohio, tomorrow, lasting through Sunday.

Quite a number of the New Castle men are planning to attend the event and gather again with their comrades who served in France and Italy.

The reunion this year is being arranged by the officers of the 332nd Infantry Association, all of whom live in Springfield. The reunion was held in New Castle two years ago.

Lone Inhabitant Last In Village

(International News Service) BELLEVILLE, Pa. Aug. 29.—The ghostly village of Scotia, near here, having had its annual day of life has sunk back again into the silence and desertion which have enveloped it for a score and a half of years.

Once a thriving town, Scotia now has a feeble flicker of life in the movements of the family of W. H. Ghann, the sole residents since, in 1900, the village was marked for extinction by the closing of the Carnegie iron ore mines. One by one the families moved away until the Ghanns were the lone inhabitants.

But once a year the village regains its lost sons and daughters and the mouldering houses echo to voices and to gaiety.

This year, "Homecoming" was attended by 900 persons, former residents of the place or their descendants.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Let Child Amuse Self By Helping

The child, as soon as he can toddle, must be doing something all the while. You might as well command the winds to cease and the rolling sea to have a glassy surface, as to tell the little child to be still. If you don't believe this, sit down with a pad and pencil and note the movements and activities of a normal two-year-old.

If this child has not been entertained too much, if he has been given proper things to play with, if let alone, and if without continuous annoyance to him he avoids a few things to which he is dangerous or which are dangerous to him, you will be surprised at what you observe.

Such a child of two or three has blocks, spoons, clothespins, other simple objects which he can draw by short or long cords, something on wheels to drag around, and other things he can haul, a box of dominoes or small blocks which he can fit into a container, a pail or pan in which he can carry little things from place to place. He has free access to a variety of kitchenware—pots, pans, covers, spoons, ladles, rolling pin, egg beater and the like. He has a substantial box or step or chair on which he can stand beside the kitchen sink and pour water from a small vessel to a larger one. Perhaps he has a funnel.

can goods and cereal packets, he is allowed to handle and to carry from place to place. There seems to be no end to the toddler's joy with such simple things.

If you are baking and have dough, he will be given a small piece. Perhaps he has a little rolling pin with which to operate. At least he likes to push his finger in the dough and see it rise again. To do so is a glorious experience.

With his cart or wagon he may like to haul small things from the kitchen through the dining room and living room, back and forth, busy himself at such exercise for hours.

Pretty soon he can cut with snub-nosed scissors, draw and color with kindergarten crayons, and paste.

Out-of-doors he likes to have some sand, some tools for working in it, some water and some pans and pails. There, too, he likes to have some toys on wheels on which to haul things around.

When we let the child alone he finds many things all around him, in discarded empty containers, and many other things usually thrown away. Often what to us adults seems most worthless, to the little child is a precious toy.

Furst's Company Gets Russian Order

Pittsburgh Firm, Headed By J. K. Furst Will Build Open Hearth Plants

The Dneprostal Metallurgical Works of Russia, have awarded to The S. R. Smythe Company, Inc., of Pittsburgh, a contract for designing two open hearth steel plants, consisting of nine 250-ton stationary furnaces for one plant, and five 250-ton tilting furnaces for another plant.

They have also appointed the Smythe Company consulting engineers on the general arrangement of the entire steel plant, consisting of approximately six 1000-ton blast furnaces with one steel making plant to produce a million tons per year of merchant steel, such as plates, structural shapes, etc., and another plant to make 500,000 tons a year for special purposes, such as alloys, tool steel, etc.

This plant will be situated on the Dnieper river, a short distance north of the Black Sea.

J. K. Furst, a resident of New Castle for many years, and who was formerly vice president of the Pennsylvania Engineering Works, is president of the S. R. Smythe Company.

Foremen's Club To Hold Corn Roast

Members of the Foremen's Club of the Shenango Works of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, will be guests of D. S. Pyle at his summer camp, "Pyle Inn" south of Harlansburg, at their second annual corn roast and picnic Saturday afternoon and evening.

A fine program of entertainment has been arranged for the occasion, and members of the club are looking forward to the event with expectancy.

Fears Fish May Die As Result Of Acid Mine Wastes

HARRISBURG, Aug. 29.—Heavy accumulation of mine drainage in the west branch of the Susquehanna river again may be responsible for killing of fish in that stream after the first heavy rainfalls, N. B. Buller, Commissioner of Fisheries, said today.

The prolonged drought has been responsible for the accumulation of acid wastes discharged from the coal fields into the West Branch of the Susquehanna and its tributaries according to personal observation made by Buller.

The first heavy rains result in acid conditions as far south as Williamsport, Buller believes and may cause the death of many fish in that region.

Buller said that while such conditions are regrettable they are the inevitable consequences of the present lack of knowledge of methods for disposing of mine drainage.

PRISON INMATES ARE REVEALED AS ADDICTS OF GOLF

(International News Service) CONCORD, N. H. Aug. 29.—Golf has at last invaded prison walls.

Inmates of the New Hampshire State Prison in a letter to the "West Concord Country Club" and which later came into the hands of Lavin J. Chase, secretary of the board of prison trustees appealed for "second-hand clubs both right and left."

The letter read: "There are several men in this prison who are very much interested in golf. Of course we do not have a very big place to play on but again we do enjoy ourselves quite a bit."

"My reason for this letter to you is to ask you if there are any second-hand clubs both left and right hand ones, (putters) and any golf balls that we can have that are not in use or of any use to the club. Also if you have any old hold cups, enough for a nine hole course."

"If you have any of the above will you please send same to me in care of Warden Clarke. About ten of us play and we have only two clubs that are any good. I thank you very much."

Latest reports had it that the inmates were sporting a new golf bag with the necessary clubs. The name of the donor was not revealed. The "golf course" used by the inmates is said to be located within the prison yard.

A radical change in refining methods produced this double-mileage oil

On the ground where Colonel Drake drilled the world's first oil well, three generations of oil men have worked tirelessly toward giving you better oil from the highest grade crude in the world. Today they offer you an oil produced by a special process that is not duplicated anywhere else in the world.

Penn Drake oil is a double-mileage oil in fact as well as in name. It is distilled at low temperatures under vacuum—heated for only fifteen seconds where conventional methods subject the oil to a scorching carbon-forming temperature for thirty-six hours. It reaches you with all the life in, ready to give you many added miles of motor-saving service. Buy it where you see the sign of the first oil well.

Freighter Sinks in N. Y. Harbor Crash

Saved from a watery grave after they had been swimming about in New York Bay for more than half an hour, when they were thrown into the harbor after a collision between the freighter Neches and a scow. The master of the ship, Captain William Estes, was killed as the freighter sank in the harbor. (International Newsreel)

Eddie Tolan, the bespectacled sprinter of the University of Michigan, winning the 100-yard dash over his arch rival, George Simpson, of Ohio State. Tolan was clocked in 9.7 seconds for the century, which was a feature of the National Senior A. A. U. Championships, held in the Pitt Stadium, Pittsburgh, Pa. In the 220-yard dash, however, Simpson turned the tables on Tolan by getting home first. (International Newsreel)

Killed in First Air Races Tragedy

Lieut. Jack P. De Shazo, 30, member of the famous Caterpillar Club, was killed during the Navy speed race at the national air meet at Chicago. While speeding 150 miles an hour on the last lap of the race, De Shazo's plane caught in the slip stream of the ship ahead and crashed into a concession stand. (International Newsreel)

Want State To Pay Half Of Damages In Road Locations

It is certain that the state legislature, which convenes next January, will be called upon to pass an act requiring the state to pay at least half of the damages created by the building of state highways, and in the relocation of routes. The last legislature passed an act placing the damages on the state, but it was vetoed by Governor Fisher.
The damages played upon counties that have carried out road building programs is each year becoming more burdensome, due to the state going ahead and relocating roads without consulting the county commissioners or considering the rights of the property owners.
There is strong sentiment springing up in different counties favorable to legislation of this nature.
There are those who would have the state assume all the damages created in the construction of a 100 per cent state road, and split the damages with the county where the road is constructed on a 50-50 basis.
The general feeling, however, seems to be that the damages should be split between the state and the county on all road work.

Connects Sunspots With River Floods

(International News Service)
VALLEJO, Cal., Aug. 29.—After ten years of continuous researches on sunspots and weather cycles, Capt. T.
J. J. See, noted scientist, professor of mathematics, U. S. Navy, retired, announced today that he had definitely connected the increase of sunspots with floods of the lower Mississippi river in 1927.
Capt. See further declared that the recent rapid decrease of sunspots in June, as reported by the Balance observatory, near Bordeaux, France had enabled him also to assign definitely the cause of the great drought in the central west.
It was proved, he said, by Thermopile measurements that the sun-spots radiate less heat than the average of the solar system. Hence the upper cool currents of the air are so high that nothing but cirrus clouds are formed, nine miles above the earth's surface, and the drought therefore continues to rage. Adequate relief cannot be expected before September he said, when the rapid motion of the sun, southward about the Autumnal Equinox, finally will upset this unfortunate state of the upper air to give rain and permanent relief from one of the most oppressive heat waves ever known.

Child Is Rescued From Path Of Auto

Snatched In Nick Of Time As Runaway Car Hits
Porch

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 29.—Pulled from the path of a car which run wild here after small boys had released the brakes, the 2-year-old daughter of Mrs. Abraham Johns probably owes her life to the presence of mind of James E. Stirling, who lifted the baby from danger a moment before the car plowed into the porch on which she had been sitting.
Parkers at the top of an incline, the car lurched down the street and into the porch, scattering children who were playing in the yard. Stirling had first attempted to pull the emergency brake while standing on the running board, but abandoned the car when he saw a crash was imminent.
Mrs. Johns rushed from the house when she heard screams of children who fled at the approach of the car, and tried to reach her baby, but stumbled and fell. Stirling leaped ahead of the car, seized the child and jumped from the porch as the car careened into the house.

Receives Card From Gold Star Mother

Mrs. D. R. Smith, Leasure avenue, is in receipt of her fourth card from the Gold Star mothers traveling in France, this one being from Mrs.
Shoemaker, of near Mercer. She says they are having a wonderful trip and the card was from Paris, where she is a guest at the Hotel D'Jemila.
The card cost 90 francs to send to Mrs. Smith, which is equivalent to about 25 cents in American money.

Has Arm Broken At Field Club

Audrey, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Bridenbaugh of at the New Castle Field Club last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bridenbaugh were playing golf, while Audrey with some companions was playing about at the children's playgrounds, when she slipped from a swing, sustaining the above mentioned injury.
This idea of breaking up old cars for junk, as an aid to the automobile business, would be all right if it didn't so often happen that the occupants failed to get out of the cars before they were broken up.— The Worcester Evening Gazette.

It must be A Good Tire to upset them so!

ALLSTATE Tires have rolled from coast to coast on a tidal wave of popularity. This success is the result of dollar for dollar value unrivalled at any price. Naturally it causes tire manufacturers the country over to raise a howl about "Mail Order" tires, so called. They adverto tell you that these other tires are known as "second line" brands... and that ALLSTATE tires are "first line", proven superior in every detail.

When you buy tires, compare quality as well as price. To aid you in doing this, we list those brands which we feel are deserving enough in quality to be compared with ALLSTATE.

Old Ex-Convict Says Modern Criminals Are Most Vicious

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent
NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—A new type of criminal—a vicious, slinking, murderous type “quick on the trigger”—has sprung up in America, according to Al Hagan, “the Rambler,” who knows a thing or two about criminals. Hagan, now a lecturer on prison reform, is an ex-convict who served a “stretch” of fifteen years in Folsom prison, California.

Hagan, a stocky well built man of 61, whose hair is turning gray around the temples, rambled into the “City Room” of International News Service and presently found his way to this reporter’s desk. You’d never suspect, looking at him for the first time, that here was a man who spent fifteen years of his life in “the big house” and who once staged one of the most sensational jail breaks in the history of Folsom.

“Yes sir,” said Hagan when he got to talking, “the criminals of today are a dangerous lot—a good deal more so than the burglar, the safe cracker, the confidence man and the pick-pocket of my day. I’m not saying they weren’t hard characters ten and twenty years ago but these criminals of today make them seem tame by comparison.”

“Today it’s a common thing to hear of them putting someone ‘on the spot.’ There are more assassin-type criminals than ever. And racketeering, of course, is to blame. They shoot their enemies down without giving them a chance.”

“The new criminals range in age from eighteen to twenty-six years of age. That’s much younger than in my day. Many of them are well educated and come from good homes. These educated fellows make the most vicious kind of criminals. Some of them are potential gang leaders; others are equipped with the nerves to carry out orders to ‘shoot to kill.’ They go after bigger game than did the confidence men and second story workers of my day. Some of the old types of crimes have almost gone out of existence.”

Hagan switched the conversation to the numerous prison outbreaks that have occurred in the various states in the last year. He was inclined to blame Society for the serious situation that has menaced the tranquility in America’s penal institutions in recent months.

“Prisons are the most expensive institutions in the world,” said Hagan. “It is costing $11,000,000,000 a year to maintain crooks, convicts, jails and penitentiaries—all they stand for.”

“Great sums of money could be saved if the penitentiaries were operated for the good of the individual that Society puts behind the bars instead of making them dismal bastilles in which to keep men locked up. Prison reform can be accomplished only by instilling some hope in the souls of wrong-doers.”

Hagan declared that “hate waves” against Society develops among the men inside the prisons that are operated contrary to the dictates of common sense and humanity. Any wrong Society does is repaid in full, he averred.

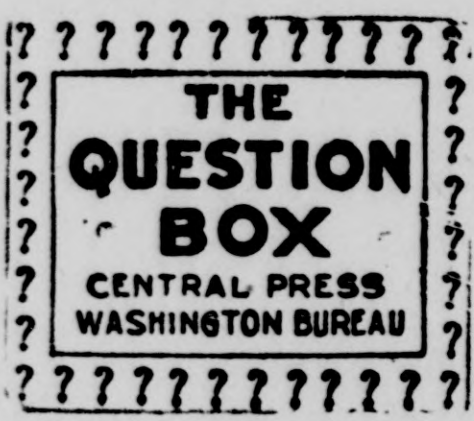

The criminal, he said, should be put in prison of course, but it should be proved to him that the institution is for the purpose of correcting him and setting him on the right path. Only the “right kind of men, sympathetic and understanding, should be trusted as heads of such institutions. The convict should be employed at useful labor for charitable institutions, in his opinion.

“And don’t starve the convict’s body while he’s incarcerated,” advised Hagan.

The old ex-convict talked freely of his “stretch” in Folsom prison. He did his fifteen years for a railroad payroll robbery in San Francisco. He made a spectacular escape in 1909 but was captured in October, 1920, in San Francisco harbor. And he finally served all of his “time,” he was released.

“It’s hard to go straight after you’ve been behind prison walls,” said Hagan. “Not that you don’t want to, but sometimes the ‘dicks’ (detectives) won’t let you. I had my troubles in this respect. Many detectives, however, are square shooters. Convicts never hate good police officers who capture them provided they prosecute them fairly. It’s the ‘framer’ they hate.” Hagan was quite convinced about one thing: “Crime never pays.” He’s been going “straight” for a long time now, and he’s going to continue walking the straight and narrow path. He never had more “peace of mind” than he has today.

Is John Held, Jr., the artist, a son of Anna Held, the famous actress? No. They are not related.

Where does Bertion Braley, the poet and author, reside? Bertion Braley is now living at South Norwalk, Conn.

Please inform me how to obtain employment in South America? You should communicate with the oil, fruit, tea and coffee, mining and steamship companies which have operations there and employ persons for the kind of work you seek.

Was there ever a state in the United States named Franklin?

Yes. The state of Franklin was originally the name of what is now Tennessee.

During the world war there was a poster used by the Red Cross entitled the “Greatest Mother of All.” Can you tell me whether this was an actual photograph and if so, of whom?

The war poster you referred to was an actual photograph of Marguerite Fontre, singer.

How were the pyramids of Egypt built when even the present day lifting machinery is inadequate to lift stones of the weight found in some of them?

This question has puzzled many generations. As no records have been left to prove how they were built, it is only a matter of conjecture. The weight of authority is that the stones were dragged up long incline planes by hundreds and thousands of slaves belonging to the Pharaohs.

Is it possible to telephone to ships at sea?

Yes. The Leviathan has had a ship to shore radio telephone service for about one year. Other installations have followed.

What is regarded as America’s greatest engineering project?

Your question is controversial. Many regard the construction of the Hudson tubes under the Hudson river at New York City, as having been the greatest engineering project up to that time. The credit for this project belongs to William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury. These tubes were followed by those of the Pennsylvania railroad and the New York-New Jersey vehicular tunnel.

Is the Woolworth building the tallest one in the world?

No. There are two buildings in New York much higher, the Chrysler and the Bank of Manhattan. The Empire State building now being constructed in New York will be approximately 1,300 feet above the street. An observation gallery will be constructed almost a quarter of a mile above the first story.

LADY SUFFERED FOR SEVEN YEARS

Ten Herbs Helped Her In Many Ways

“I suffered from stomach trouble for nearly eight years, but Ten Herbs gave me such great relief that I have recommended your medicine to others,” said Mrs. J. A. Deemer, Box 25, Portersville, Pa. (near Butler). “I can hardly describe how I suffered after meals. Gas bloated me badly, and sometimes it would make me so short of breath that I would have to arise in bed at night so I could get a little relief and breathe easier. Certain food was very distressing, causing pains in my stomach and a heavy pressure around my heart. Constipation bothered me, and I was subject to severe headaches. My liver was torpid, and at times I was drowsy and had pains between my shoulders. “I tried your medicine, and was delighted with the way it helped my stomach, as gas, bloating and shortness of breath were ended. The pains in my stomach, pressure around my heart and headaches were relieved. I no longer had to avoid many foods as formerly, and my appetite improved. I began to sleep better. My liver, kidneys and bowels got in good condition and I ceased feeling drowsy and sluggish. The pains between my shoulders disappeared. I derived so much benefit from Ten Herbs that I gladly give your medicine a public endorsement.”

Ten Herbs is wonderful for the relief of disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, also for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Ten Herbs is sold at Eckerd’s of New Castle, Inc., 30 E. Washington St., this city, and by all leading druggists throughout this entire section.

A. A. A. Approves Action Taken By Prohibition Head

Believes Equipping Of Officers Cars With Shields Is Much Needed Step

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 29.—The American Automobile Association declared today that the decision of Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, Director of Prohibition, to equip enforcement agents with identification shields, is the most important step taken to protect the rights of motorists since the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The statement of the national motoring body was issued after a conference between Col. Woodcock, Ernest N. Smith, Executive Vice-President of the A. A. A., and H. M. Lucius, Secretary of the Automobile Club of Maryland, at which the design for the new shields was formally approved by the Director of Prohibition.

The method of identification selected is a shield of black letters on a white background. It is 17 inches wide and 20 inches long. At the top, in large letters, will be the word “STOP.” Under this will be “U. S. Official, Bureau of Prohibition.” At the bottom will be the seal of the Department of Justice.

The A. A. A. said that the shield will be placed on the right front door of the agent’s car and at night time will be illuminated by a flashlight. The agent will drive up on the left side of the car he is stopping, at the same time displaying the shield so that it may be readily recognized by the driver being halted.

Col. Woodcock said that he intends that prohibition agents “shall be the best trained group of officers in the world, and that they will keep on a parity their duty to detect the guilty and their obligation to protect the innocent.”

The A. A. A. statement said: “The prompt action of the Director of Prohibition in adopting a method for agents to identify themselves when halting cars on the highway will be accepted by motorists as an assurance that their rights are to be protected. It is in contrast to the hair-trigger methods allowed to creep into the enforcement program in the past.”

“Identification shields will be manufactured and distributed to prohibition agents within the next 60 days. Responsibility for invading the rights of innocent users of the highway will then be squarely on the shoulders of individual officers. It should solve a problem that has been most troublesome, especially for those who drive at night.”

Vaccinate To Prevent 'Fall' Fever

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Typhoid fever is another disease which belongs to the middle ages, to the dark ages. We have already this week described smallpox, which is no longer a pestilence of the modern period. And diphtheria, which is still among us to some extent, although we hope it is fighting its last fight. We hope and think—nay! we almost know diphtheria is in its last line of trenches.

Typhoid fever used to be called autumnal fever. It was particularly prevalent in the late summer and autumn. Thirty years ago about this time the hospitals would be clearing out their beds for the cases of typhoid fever that were sure to come in to fill them. At least half the beds in a hospital in America 50 years ago were filled with typhoid patients. From 15 to 18 per cent of them died. All of them were invalids for a period of at least three months. Typhoid fever was no respecter of persons. It claimed the young, the strong, the weak, the old, the middle-aged.

Its disappearance has been gradual. It has been due to several causes. The cause of typhoid fever, the typhoid bacillus, was discovered by Professor Eberth in 1880. The discovery initiated our conquest of the disease, because with the study of its habits it was found that it was largely a water-borne disease.

The typhoid bacillus, Eberth found, entered the body in drinking water, sometimes in milk, sometimes in oysters, sometimes from food over which flies had walked, but always in material contaminated by water. And boiling the water will kill the typhoid germs. So when people learned that and began to boil all the water they used, typhoid fever began to disappear.

Then city health departments started to make a daily disinfection of the drinking water. When typhoid bacilli are present they notify the population through the papers, and warn people to be sure to boil the drinking water before use. This public inspection still further reduced the number of cases of the disease.

Lastly, individual inoculation began to be practiced. During the Boer war, about 1899, Dr. Almroth Wright showed that by injecting a person with three doses of dead typhoid bacilli, an artificial immunity was established. Dr. Wright proved that if he inoculated one regiment of soldiers with typhoid vaccination the number of cases of typhoid in that regiment was almost nothing compared to the number of cases in a regiment not so inoculated.

This practice of typhoid vaccination has become very widespread in the general population. It has been the third most important means of preventing typhoid.

To show how effective all these measures are, let us recall the actual figures as collected by the government. In 1900 the death rate from typhoid fever was 36 persons per 100,000 population; in 1927 it was five persons per 100,000 population.

Now the question naturally arises in any parents' mind—shall I give my child the typhoid vaccination? Won't boiling the water be enough? Won't the supervision of the drinking water by the board of health be enough protection?

The answer depends on how efficient your board of health is. Then the question arises, will your child always drink only the water you have prepared for it? Water containing typhoid bacilli may be clear and sparkling, without a particle of odor.

Then the board of health may notify you that there is typhoid in the water, but in the meantime you or your children have drunk the water and been infected with typhoid.

My advice is, by all means to have the children vaccinated against typhoid before starting for school. It takes three injections, given hypodermically, about a week to five days apart. Children stand the injections with fewer reactions than adults.

Every soldier in the United States army has to have this set of inoculations before he enters service. A colonel in the medical corps of the army told me that before the practice became compulsory, he never took a regiment out on fatigue duty without expecting to be court-martialed before he returned, on account of the number of cases of typhoid that would develop. In spite of the fact that the orders were that the men should not drink anything but boiled water, they would break away and drink from wells and cisterns. Thus many of them got typhoid.

Now, with universal compulsory vaccination, they can drink any water they like. There is no typhoid fever in the army.

Carnera-Bertazzola To Battle Saturday

Man Mountain Of Italy To Tackle Bertazzola, Big Blustery Sort Of Mixer

Will Be Last Fight Before Championship Affair For Primo Carnera

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Down in Atlantic City tomorrow night, they again are going to slip the long chains off Primo Carnera, the beeg Caribou, and let him ramp and stamp and champ in the good, old medicine show routine, perhaps for the last time before he breaks in with the championship fight, perhaps for the last time anywhere. He will daily with an experienced Guinean pig called Riccardo Bertazzola, who is doubtless no better than his name implies, and what Carnera may do and how he does it will be of considerable import. The man either is very good or very bad; therefore, his next time out may always be his last or the beginning of a very useful life.

The Department of Immigration itself was a bit nonplussed by this matter not more than a few weeks ago. It even went as far as to order the fellow to leave the country but a compromise was effected whereby he promised to stay almost indefinitely. It was all very simple. The Department told Primo to go but he said he would be glad to stay, so everything was fixed up nicely.

To Get $100,000
However, even though he finds it inconvenient to leave the country just now, he wants to do the right thing by the government and will begin tomorrow night by leaving Atlantic City. It is only a coincidence that about $100,000 is liable to leave with him. They tell me this fight can't miss.

The arena, according to estimates, will seat 40,000 and with a million people at the resort over the holidays, it ought to be like selling tickets at a subway station.

This Bertazzola has nothing but size and a resolute chin. He has never been knocked out, they say, but never have I, so that's all even. The answer means about the same in both cases, namely, it isn't always the chin that counts but the fist that hits it.

Considering that Bertazzola himself can't hit hard enough to knock you that well back upon your ears, the foregoing would seem to place all of the proof on Primo's hitting. Assuming that the other champ will be in there trying, then it ought to narrow down to a question of which will succumb first, Primo's hands or the champ's face.

However, there is this to be noted about the other champ. I was sitting in an office at Madison Square Garden some time ago thinking about my investments or something when the telephone went off and I gave ear, as it were. It seemed that a certain matchmaker had a message that I was to deliver to a certain gentleman of our mutual acquaintance.

"Tell such-and-so that that guy won't take that guy," said he brightly. Being dumb that way, I had to have further details which were as follows: That Victorio Campolo wouldn't accept a match with Marty Gallagher, I noticed later that Campolo finally accepted another man. The other man was Bertazzola.

Cardinals Win In Twentieth

St. Louis Cardinals Beat Chicago Cubs In Longest Game Of Season

WESLEY FERREL WINS HIS 23rd

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—It was almost dark out there in Wrigley Field and when the ball lunged over the plate you could hardly see it in the gloaming; then a mighty whack in the dusk, a ghostly figure dashed across the plate and pretty soon lights flashed on in the nearby thundering elevated trains as gray-tinted figures showed on the score board: St. Louis 8, Chicago 7.

For that shadowy form running from second to home was Taylor Douthett, roused into action as Andy High, Cardinal third baseman, caught one of pitcher Osborn's fast ones and whaled a sparkling single in center. That was how the Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs in the twentieth inning and today the Bruins halted five games in front with St. Louis a decided factor in a bitter four-cornered fight for the National League pennant. The Cards are in a virtual tie with the Giants for third place with the thrilling Robins only half a skirmish ahead of the Giants. It was the second straight failure of Chicago and the ninth straight victory for the powerful St. Louis club.

Scoring seven centers in the sixth inning Brooklyn came from behind to triumph over the Giants, 8 to 7, and advanced to the second berth. Herman's triple and Wright's homer climaxed the fireworks for the Robins and drove Carl Hubbell to the showers.

Clubbing five Cincinnati pitchers for 30 hits, theirates won a double header 16 to 12 and 11 to 2. Heilmann of the Reds got two homers in the first tilt.

Lisenbet held the champion Athletics to six hits and the Ruddy Sox took it 2 to 1. An error by Fox, Webb's single and a double by Miller won for Boston.

Babe Ruth continued homerless and the Senators downed the Yankees 6 to 3. Crowder was the winning pitcher.

Walter Berger chalked up his thirty-first homer of the year as Boston scored six runs in the seventh and defeated the Phils 13-10.

Blaeholder and Kinsey gave Detroit only four hits, the Brownies climbing all over the ball to register nine runs against one.

Homer No. 25 by Eddie Morgan and 17 other bings by Cleveland blasted the White Sox 10 to 5. It was Wes Ferrell's twelfth consecutive success and his twenty-third for the season.

Doeg and Lott Enter Finals In Tennis Tourney

(International News Service)
BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 29.—It will be Johnny Doeg and George Lott, the defending champions, against Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, the Wimbledon titleholders, in the final round of the national men's doubles tennis championships tomorrow at the Longwood Cricket Club.

Doeg and Lott came through after a blistering five-set match with the Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter in the semi-final round, winning 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 9-11, 6-2.

Allison and Van Ryn defeated Berkeley Bell and George Mangin, 6-8, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4. The fourth set of the match went to 20 games.

Betty Nuthall of England and Helen Marlowe of Los Angeles went to the finals in the women's invitation doubles, defeating Marjorie Morrill of Dedham and Edith Cross of San Francisco 9-7, 2-6, 8-6.

The American doubles champions will play against each other in the title match for Sarah Palfrey of Brookline, who teamed with the British star in last week's title play at Forest Hills, L. I., joined her sister Mianne in the other semi-final and defeated the Californians, Marjorie and Joseph Cruickshank, 9-7, 6-4.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

George Lott and John Doeg, defending champs, passed the semi-final round of the men's national tennis double championships yesterday at Chestnut Hill, Mass. To do this it required five sets to beat Bill Tilden and Francis Hunter. The scores were 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 9-11, 6-2.

Johnny Erickson won the decision over Jackie Rodgers in a 10 round bout at Hickey park, Millvale, last night. It was a fast fight for three rounds but they tired from their exertions. However, they kept tossing punches over steadily for the balance of the bout and fanned liked the scrap.

Carl Kauffman, defending champion and Robert Graham, medalist, will meet today in the 36 hole final round for the men's golf championship of Pittsburgh. They will play at Schenley links.

The world mile record for trotting stallions over a half mile track was fractured at the Ohio State Fair harness races, Columbus, O., yesterday by High Noon. Driven by Charles Valentine the bay stallion, owned by O. C. Belt, made the free for all trot in 2:04 1-4, a quarter second better than the mark set by Guy Fletcher at Goshen, N. Y., two weeks ago.

While High Noon was accomplishing that at Columbus, May E. Grat, chestnut mare, driven by Earl Pitman, took the 2:08 pace. Grand circuit feature, at Goshen. She paced the oval in 1:59 1-2 in the last heat to set a new record for the track and the best mark by any pacer this season.

MUSHBALL LEAGUE

Qualifications To Be Staged At 10 A. M. At Fair Track

GASOLINE DERBY BEGINS AT 3 P. M.

Lawrence "Mike" Hickson veteran Pittsburgh speed king, has filed his signed entry for this city's inaugural 100 mile gasoline derby at the local fair grounds Monday—Labor Day afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock sharp.

Because of the many entries the qualifications will start at 10 o'clock in the morning race day.

Hickson has not yet specified the racing car he will tool, as he has been made the recipient of many flattering offers from sponsors of fast Middle Western speed creations, among the most alluring of which is one from Johnny Boyd of Indianapolis, who has entered two steel steeds in this holiday tournament.

Boyd's proffer for the services of Hickson was made immediately after the two tangled and went through the fence in the recent 100 mile motor meet at Raceland, Ky. It was born of respect for the prowess of the Pittsburgher with whom he had never clashed before although both have been throwing dice with death for a number of years.

A spirit of loyalty to two of his team-mates for years—Billy Schenpp triumphant in the Raceland contest, and Jack Casey, both of the Steel City, and to Frank J. Sill of Pittsburgh, whose car Hickson has been tooling from his embryonic days at a driver, has prevented "Mike" from snapping up the offer.

Hickson will drive "Deuce" his "deuce" as he fondly refers to the No. 2 Frontenac racing creation, for so long that he had become warmly attached to it, even if it did sort of throw him down and threw the fence at Raceland. He also wishes to be lined up with the defending Western Pennsylvania speed king in their efforts to repel the invading Middle Western racing drivers in the fight for honors and the rich purses that will go to the victors here.

As the deadline for the entries will be tomorrow midnight, Hickson must make his decision as to whether he will be one of the outsiders or in the camp of the Western Pennsylvania knights of the steel steeds. Schenpp, his most loyal partner in the speed sport, figures that "Mike" will stick to his "Deuce."

Ellwood Will Have Fine Scenic Park

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 29.—Approximately forty five acres of land, situated in the heart of the hills bordering the Connoquessing creek, has been transferred from the Shelby Land Company to the borough and will before long be transformed into a scenic park, where natural beauties abound in large rocks and interesting trails used at one time by red skins of this section.

This land, which includes much of the territory formerly the Jordan Johnston farm, winds about below the bridge, taking in the woody bend and a triangle on the opposite side of the bridge as well as a field on the opposite side of the street car track.

Up to now this territory has been known as Ewing Park, and it has not been decided as yet by the borough fathers whether or not the same name is to be continued.

Upon looking over the possibilities one is informed that already gas and electricity are fixtures in the delightful

Young Men Return From Hiking Trip

Cover 1700 Miles Into New England District—Tourists Give Aid Readily

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 29.—Fred Keller and Robert Shields returned Wednesday night from a hitch hiking trip, which they made in two weeks time covering an area of 1700 miles, through the New England States, going as far north as Portsmouth, N. H., following the Mohawk trail along the Hudson river, going through Albany, New York and Boston.

The two young men left Ellwood last Wednesday with just twenty five dollars between them and returned one week later with a fifty cent piece and a healthy appetite. While away they were not forced to take any other means of transportation other than that offered them on the highways.

They did not find tourists heartless, as has been advertised concerning their attitude toward hitch hikers. Fred has been working at the Ellwood playgrounds all summer and planned this interesting vacation before starting out on his third year at Pittsburgh University.

Bob has just returned from a hitch hiking trip through to Denver, Colorado, where he has been spending the summer. While in Nebraska he worked for several weeks in the wheat fields, in order to increase his funds for the remainder of the trip. He will return to school next week, a senior in Ellwood High.

Out of every hundred golfers who take to the first tee there are 100 different stances.

For those who feel lost on the tee, the above diagram will be of every importance in getting off to a good start and will solve a lot of your problems as to where the ball and arms should be played in addressing the ball.

This line is along the left leg and the hands and arms fall into a very natural stance in placing the club head to the ball, which is placed on a line off the left heel.

The stance is slightly open, as you can see, by the parallel lines along the ground. This allows a certain freedom to your swing, which may otherwise be cramped.

Now, the position of the right hand and arm will fall naturally into the full grip if you will reach over with the right and grip the club.

Do not pull the right hand and club over to meet the right hand. Leave the left side of the body just as it was when you took the original stance with the left hand and arm.

You are now in a position that may seem strange to you if you have been playing in an unorthodox fashion, but if you are ever to hit into the low and into the seventies in style and stance shown must be adopted as a foundation to a good long ball and above all things the accuracy of the shot.

Carrick Youth Is Shot As Prowler

Youth Raiding Refrigerator Of Home Is Surprised By Owner And Shot

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29.—A hungry 10-year-old Carrick boy, Joseph Phillips, was shot this morning when he attempted to steal some food from the ice box of a neighbor.

According to the police, William J. Herlihy shot the boy in the left hand when he investigated a noise on his back porch. Noticing someone running toward him, Herlihy opened fire on the boy.

Despite his wound, Joseph made his way to his home, where police summoned by Herlihy found him after they had trailed blood spots leading from the scene of the shooting.

The boy told officers that he had been sleeping out of doors and sought food in Herlihy's refrigerator when he was hungry. Herlihy carried the gun for protection against prowlers who had looted his refrigerator several times recently.

The boy, taken to St. Joseph's hospital by his parents, admitted previous thefts of food from the refrigerator, according to police.

Allegheny County Boy Scouts Will Honor Paul Siple

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29.—Allegheny county Boy Scouts will gather tonight to honor Paul Siple, Erie scout, who accompanied Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd on his recent expedition to the Antarctic Circle.

A. T. Benson, director of the Allegheny county scout organization will direct the meeting to be held in Joseph Hornes' auditorium.

City and county officials and members of the Chamber of Commerce will also take part in the ceremonies for Siple.

Gas Station Man Robbery Victim At Pittsburgh

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29.—George Dowler, stepping to the side of an automobile which stopped at his gas station today found himself confronted with two armed thugs who robbed the station of $36 in cash.

The two men backed him into the service station office and threatened him with their revolvers removed the money from the cash register. Driving off in their automobile they warned Dowler against making an outcry.

Auto Racers Qualify Over Altoona Track

(International News Service)

ALTOONA SPEEDWAY, Altoona, Pa., Aug. 29.—Wheeling his gasoline steed across this wooden saucer for an average speed of 120.3 miles an hour, "Deacon" Litz, DuBois speed demon, today was assured of a place among the 12 starters in the 200-mile Labor Day championship auto classic which will be held here Monday.

Litz turned the mile-and-a-quarter lap in 37.2 seconds. He was the first to qualify.

"Shorty" Cantlon, holder of the world's record for four-cylinder cars of the type he has entered for the classic, piloted his Miller-Schofield around the track in 23.7 seconds, an average speed of 117.8 miles an hour.

Lee Myer, 3-A champion of 1929, rounded the oval for an unofficial time of 123.4 miles per hour but failed to top Litz's mark in the actual qualifying trials, being unable to bounce his tires around at more than a 115-mile average speed.

Other drivers clocked and their speeds were Russ Snowberger, Philadelphia, 115.3; Phil Fardeef, 114.1; Lou Schneider, 109.2.

Trials will continue throughout today and Saturday and the 12 cars chalking up the fastest times will roar away with the drop of the starter's checkered flag on Monday.

Spying On Sports

By WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sports Editor

Much to the astonishment of everyone, including the hurlers themselves, the big league baseball clubs are at last getting real big league pitching.

It has happened suddenly. Up to not so many days ago the sluggers in both major circuits were having the time of their lives knocking out a continuous blizzard of long drives for a fast swelling number of home runs and fantastic batting averages.

But now, at least temporarily, it has all changed. The storm of the pitchers give every appearance of bearing down and, to the utter amazement of the home sated fan, clusters of 3-2, 2-1 and 1-0 ball games have put in an appearance.

Either the batters have lost the old touch or the moundsmen are suddenly improving. As it is, however, likely that all the leading hitters in both leagues would suddenly fall into a slump the last supposition must be the correct one.

The new phase, while it lasts, is a pleasant one. It has brought about many stirring close battles reminiscent of the game of 10 years or so ago.

Once more interest has been developed in the doings of the leading

SORDS POINTS

Pacific Coast's New 'Millionaire' Coach

HERB WAS STANFORD'S 211-POUND QUARTERBACK LAST YEAR.

AS LONG AS (WIN A UNIFORM) I DON'T CARE.

HE WILL ASSIST DUDE DE GROOT AS COACH AT MENLO JUNIOR COLLEGE THIS FALL.

HERB FLEISHACKER

By JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Artist

The "millionaire quarterback" of a season ago—Herb Fleishacker heavy-weight Stanford quarterback—has become the "millionaire coach" of today.

So strong a hold has the gridiron game on the wealthy young athlete he has, at least temporarily sidetracked whatever plans he may have had for the business world to stick to the game he loves best—football.

And don't think that Herb with his wealth picked out a soft job for himself. No sir. The Stanford star is beginning at the bottom of the coaching ladder and wants to work up. He has grabbed the chance to act as assistant coach to Dud de Groot, mentor at Menlo Junior College, a California institution of learning to which annually flock many promising prep school footballers, and which annually turns over a crop of more or less learned moleskin men to Stanford.

Fleishacker's preference for football is just another example of the hold the gridiron game has on those who have played it. Herb's folks have too much of the old dough-rem-me-for-um to have to seek a pro team post to keep his finger in the game. That's why Herb is holding down the assistant coach's job at Menlo, money not meaning any too much to him.

There is nothing so very strange about a wealthy young man like Herb hanging on to college game after his college days are over. Many wealthy ex-gridders have in after years continued to play on club teams, work as game officials or tried their hands at coaching for no other reason than that once they have wrapped their fingers around the pebbled sides of a pigskin they just can't let go.

Five Planes Are Destroyed By Fire

Fire At Municipal Airport In Kansas City Is Loss Of $75,000

(International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 29.—Five airplanes were completely destroyed and one badly damaged in a fire which swept No. 4 hangar at the Municipal airport here today. Damage was estimated at $75,000.

The gasoline tanks of the five destroyed planes exploded, adding to the difficulty of fighting the blaze, which was confined to the interior of the hangar.

The planes destroyed by the fire and explosions included two 8-passenger single motor monoplanes valued at a total of $50,000.

Janitor's Condition Reported Unchanged

It was reported this morning that the condition of Walter H. Wolford of 913 Maryland avenue who sustained a fractured skull when he fell from the porch roof of the Lincoln and Garfield school on the East Reynolds street entrance, is unchanged, in the New Castle hospital.

Pirates Take Double Bill

Kremer And Swetonic Register Wins When Pirates Hit Red Hurlers

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29.—The Pirates extended their winning streak to three by capturing a twin bill from the Cincinnati Reds yesterday at Forbes field. The Pittsburgh outfit pounded a 16-12 victory in the first and a 11-2 win in the second. The Pirates outlit the Reds in both games.

When Kremer lodged on the winning side in the first game it made his nineteenth victory of the season. He hurled against Lucas, Johnson and Ash. Swetonic pitched against Frey and Johnson in the second game. The box scores:

NEW YORK STOCKS

Moderate Upward Movement By Rails And Industrials

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The Railroad stocks and the best grade industrial led in the moderate upward movement of prices in the early trading today. The bears were busily engaged in covering up, their short lines in stocks thrown on the market earlier in the week, and investment buying was also reported in some of the important brokerage houses.

United States Steel, selling ex-dividend $17.50 a share topped 171 for a gain of about 2 points. General Electric pushed ahead to 74, the highest price on the move, and Westinghouse gained 2 points at 151 1/2. Southern Railway snapped back to 86 for a gain of 3 1/2 points on the improving dividend prospects. Atchafalaya advanced 3 points from the opening price, to 220 1/2. New York Central, Union Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohio gained a point on the average.

The shooting occurred on the Banksville road where Carson had been taken by James Stone, 26, cab driver, from the downtown district. According to the cab drivers Carson was shot by two men who followed the taxi from the downtown district and attacked Carson when he left the cab on Banksville road.

Victor Willitt, 23, and Benjamin Warden, 27, occupants of the trailing car who brought Carson to the hospital claim they were riding with Carson and that he was shot when highwaymen attempted to stage a holdup which Carson resisted.

Police found Stone by his cab when they answered a summons by residents of the district. He informed Carson that the two men had taken his automobile and sped away with him. Hospital authorities alleged that Willitt and Warden had brought Carson to the institution. Stone identified him partially.

According to police both Stone and Willitt showed signs of having engaged in a fist fight. All three were arrested pending investigation by police.

Await Opening At Junior High

George Washington Office Reports Pre-Opening
Work Completed

After two solid weeks of preparation, the George Washington junior high school office today announced everything in readiness for the opening of school one week from next Monday. Schedule cards and courses of study have been carefully checked, and as far as the building itself is concerned school could open tomorrow.

Principal Browne K. Thacker announces only two additions to the faculty this year. Harold Boak will instruct in general science and 7B mathematics, while Miss Dorothy Fisher will handle the commercial studies. Thomas Smathers, a member of the faculty last year will supervise the physical activities of the boys during the first semester.

Approximately 810 pupils were enrolled last semester including the continuation school students. Mr. Thacker expects a slight increase in attendance this fall, although this cannot fully be determined until the opening day.

A special request was issued to township pupils today by Principal Thacker, who declared that a large number of Neshannock township boys and girls will attend this year.

Tuition pupils should visit the office before September 8 so that less confusion will be necessary the first day.

While workmen already are placing the school cafeteria in readiness, no meals are to be served the opening day. School will be dismissed at noon, or shortly after, on that date. The cafeteria will function the following day.

So that important instructions and other necessary matters may be explained to the teachers before school gets under way, a meeting of the entire faculty has been called for Saturday, September 6 at 1:30 p. m. This will follow the general teachers' meeting at the senior high school.

Under the direction of George W. Beaton, janitor, workmen have been busily engaged for weeks putting finishing touches on hallways and rooms throughout the building. Walls have been cleaned and all of the floors have been waxed.
